Israeli Cabinet Okays Treaty By 15-2 Vote

Times News Services

The Israeli cabinet today overwhelmingly accepted the Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty, giving its approval to the first pact of its kind between Arab and Jew and clearing the way for its presentation to parliament where endorsement seemed certain.

The Israeli radio said the treaty will be signed in Washington next Monday.

Meanwhile, however, U.S. national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski Sunday failed to win support for the proposed treaty from conservative Saudi Arabia and Jordan — although Saudi Arabia will not halt its $2 billion in annual aid to Cairo in retaliation.

Top Jordanian officials made it clear that Jordan did not agree with the U.S. view that the main threat to stability in the Middle East was Soviet and/or radical Arab ambitions.

"We think the main threat is Israeli occupation and expansion," one official said.

The Israeli cabinet vote accepting the nine-article treaty was 15-2, including that of Defence Minister Ezer Weizman who was in Washington, Cabinet Secretary Arye Naor said.

Voting against the pact were Agriculture Minister Ariel Sharon, the hero of the 1973 October War who is responsible for Jewish settlement in the occupied territories, and Transport Minister Haim Landau, Naor said.

The cabinet voted less than 24 hours after Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan urged an early first concrete step in implementing the first agreement — opening the border between Egypt and Israel a month after the treaty signing instead of nine months.

The open borders, Dayan said, would facilitate Egyptian participation in negotiations for Palestinian autonomy.

But he stressed the right of movement across the international border would have to be mutual.

The cabinet decided in addition to establish a committee to draw up proposals for Palestinian self-government in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip prior to negotiations with Egypt on the plan, Naor said.

Prime Minister Begin will head the committee and it will start work following the treaty signing, Naor said.

The army will resume its withdrawal from Sinai Sunday, defence ministry sources said. The military began withdrawing non-combat equipment in the fall but halted the operation when the treaty negotiations ran into a deadlock.

With Israeli parliamentary approval all but certain, the government already has made final plans for the ceremony in Washington where President

P.M. 'Spoofing' On Election Call

OTTAWA (CP) — A spokesman for the prime minister's office said Sunday the prime minister has not called an election.

Pat Gossage, in a telephone interview, said when Prime Minister Trudeau said Saturday at the annual Parliamentary Press Gallery dinner he had spoken with Governor-General Edward Schreyer about dissolving Parliament to call an election he "was spoofing."

"I will not hang on the prime minister's words" under those conditions, Gossage said.

"But I can say the prime minister will not call an election at this time."

The press gallery dinner is recognized as a time for leg-pulling — gallery members putting on the elected members and the MPs and cabinet ministers getting back at the gallery members.

Trudeau told the gathering of reporters and politicians that: "in the next 24 hours you people will have to worry whether this is just another of my lousy jokes and I'll have to worry about whether you'll respect the confidentiality of this dinner."

Doctors in Fee Battle

Doctors may be forced to opt out of the B.C. Medical Plan unless the provincial government increases fees for service, Dr. Norman Ridgley warned today.

Ridgley, executive director of the B.C. Medical Association, said the association has been negotiating with the health ministry since November.

If a reasonable settlement is not reached by April 1, quitting the plan is one move the doctors may be forced to take.

He said doctors might bill patients the difference between what the government is prepared to pay and the schedule of fees set by the BCMA.

Should this happen, he said, the doctors will not bill old age pensioners, people on social assistance and others who are unable to afford the additional costs.

Ridgley said doctors in B.C. are reluctant to opt out of the provincial plan, as some doctors have already done in Alberta and Ontario, but it may be forced on them.

"Doctors in B.C. have been very responsive. We've tried hard to be reasonable, to negotiate and be patient," he said.

Ridgley noted that in 1970-1971 doctors in Canada accounted for 1.3 per cent of the Gross National Product. This has now been reduced to .9 per cent.

In the same period, Ridgley said, doctors earned 4½ times as much as the average industrial worker. This has now dropped to three times as much.

He pointed out doctors, like everybody else, have been coping with increased overhead expenses.

Ridgley said doctors are happy with the concept of the provincial medical plan but are being forced into a corner where they may have to take action.

"The pressure is on," he said.

Truce Settles Kurds

TEHRAN (AP) — A ceasefire stilled fighting between Kurdish rebels and the Iranian revolutionary government in northwestern Iran today, Radio Iran reported. The truce, arranged by Moslem and military leaders, ended 24 hours of violence in which at least 170 persons were reported killed.

One source reached by telephone said rebels took over a military headquarters building, the police barracks and the radio and television stations and were laying siege to the military barracks at Sanandaj, 400 kilometres west of here, when the ceasefire was declared.

Fighting also was reported in towns around Sanandaj.

Most Kurds, who want autonomy for their region, belong to the Sunni Moslem sect. The Islamic forces of Ayatollah Khomeini's revolutionary government belong to Iran's dominant Shiite sect.

It was not clear what sparked the fighting. By some accounts, it was sparked by the appointment of Shiites to key civil posts in the heavily-Sunni region after the overthrow of Iran's monarchy.

B.C. Offered As Reactor Test Site

By PAUL NICHOLSON
Times Staff

The provincial government is making a serious pitch to have a proposed $1 billion international experimental plant which produces energy like that of the sun located in B.C.

Education, Science and Technology Minister Dr. Pat McGeer confirmed B.C. wants the International Tokamak Reactor (Intor) facility if a plan proposed by the Russians goes ahead.

Scientists hope Intor will produce artificially on earth the same power that is produced by the sun.

If it proceeds, and if B.C. is successful in having it located here, it will transform energy technology in the province, McGeer said in an interview from his University of B.C. lab.

"It would mean B.C. would be among the world leaders in such technology," McGeer said.

Finland and Quebec have already made their bids for the plant.

Fossil fuel energy is depleting and causes environmental problems with CO2 waste and nuclear fission energy is alarming to a lot of people because of its radioactive byproducts, McGeer said.

But power from an an Intor reactor does not have a significant radioactive byproduct problem.

Russia first proposed a project where the latest technology of member nations of the International Atomic Agency build the necessary research facility in a neutral country agreeable to all members.

The IAA is still studying the proposal, McGeer said.

The object of an Intor facility is to see if it is possible to produce the equivalent energy to that produced by the sun — light, heat and helium gas.

According to today's issue of the Monteal Gazette, Quebec is the favored site.

The Soviets apparently are looking to Finland while the U.S. favors a Canadian site and B.C. is pressuring Ottawa to have the plant located here if a Canadian site is agreed upon.

No specific B.C. location is mentioned but the lower mainland is the most likely area.

Trollers Protest Rules

ASTORIA, Ore. (AP) — Representatives of troller fishermen on the United States West Coast have decided to send a delegation to Washington, D.C., to protest proposed federal ocean salmon fishing regulations.

The proposed regulations, among other things, would reduce this year's commercial salmon season by eight weeks.

Fishermen complained that the proposals would put them at a competitive disadvantage to Canadian fishermen.

The trollers said the proposed regulations would be unfairly restrictive, would deprive them of their livelihoods and would deprive consumers of an adequate supply of salmon.

PFMC representatives said the eight-week reduction was necessary to protect diminishing stocks of salmon.

2 More Raise Price of Oil

Times News Services

Mexico and Venezuela have announced oil price increases effective April 1, it was announced today.

Venezuela, a major supplier of oil to Canada and the United States, will increase prices by $1.72 a barrel.

The increase is $1.20 more than that decided upon by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) for the second quarter of 1979, Energy Minister Humberto Calderon Berti told a news conference.

OPEC agreed last December on a staggered 14.5-per-cent increase in the price of crude oil during 1979. However, prices have risen much faster because of a shortage of oil supplies brought on by civil strife in Iran, a major world producer.

Venezuela raised the price of its fuel oil, which accounts for 18 per cent of the country's oil exports, by 15 per cent March 1.

In Mexico, Petroleos Mexicanos director general Jorge Diaz Serrano did not say how much the increase will be but said "we are carrying out negotiations to set the prices for the next trimester which starts on April 1."

Observers said they believe that price increase will continue to be 50 cents a barrel more than the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries charges. Mexico now sells oil at $14.10 a barrel.

Walkout at Chetwynd An Angry 'Tap Dance'

CHETWYND (CP) — About 300 workers walked off the job on the weekend because they don't like the water at a natural gas plant near here.

The men, members of various unions working at the Dillingham-Delta Pine River gas plant, said they left the job because poor water pressure meant they could not shower or clean up after work.

Van Dycke said the problem arose when the pump system at a well at the construction site broke down and water was brought in by tanker truck.

The water being brought in is chlorinated. Van Dycke said the men do not like the taste, but noted that the water is being taken from the Chetwynd water system — the same system many of the men use in their homes.

Loggers May Defy Fisheries Ban

By MARK HUME
Times Staff

A spokesman for Q.C. Timber Ltd. hinted today his company may defy a federal fisheries cutting ban on a watershed in the Queen Charlotte Islands.

Jack Sexton, general manager of the Vancouver-based company, said fallers who were warned off from cutting timber along Riley Creek last week may go back.

"We've been trying to play it very cool," said Sexton.

"But you get tired of going to bed every night worrying about how it's going to be resolved. We have to face this. We have to bring things to a head."

At issue is a 40-acre tract of timber on steep slopes along Riley Creek, on Rennell Sound.

Federal fisheries officers banned logging on the slopes because they said increased erosion would damage salmon spawning beds in the stream. Subsequent to that move, however, the provincial forestry department approved logging on the site.

"Who controls our forests?" asked Sexton.

"The provincial government or the federal government?"

It could cost a lot to get the answer.

When fallers moved into the controversial area last week they were met by two federal fisheries officers who served them with a letter warning that charges would be laid if cutting continued.

Under Bill C38, the Fisheries Act, anyone resposible for depositing damaging material in fish habitat could face fines of up to $50,000 or jail terms of up to two years.

Sexton said that when the fallers were confronted with possible charges they were scared off.

Sexton said it is up to the fallers to decide whether or not they want to cut in the restricted area and face possible charges.

Meanwhile Sexton said he'd like to see the fight between the federal and provincial governments come to an end.

"I feel like we're caught in a lemon squeezer," he said.

Sexton said one way to resolve the debate over steep slope logging would be to allow the company to log a test area.

Margaret Had Affair With Ted Kennedy?

TORONTO (CP) — Maclean's magazine says one of the factors that led to the disintegration of the marriage between Prime Minister Trudeau and his wife, Margaret, was a brief liaison between Mrs. Trudeau and U.S. Senator Edward Kennedy.

Maclean's says it has not confirmed that Mrs. Trudeau was telling the truth but adds that if she was, "it is difficult to determine which was the more monumental indiscretion — doing it or talking about it."

In a cover story on Mrs. Trudeau, the magazine also says the couple tried to reconcile last winter and engaged an architect to design a house for them in the Laurentian mountains.

Mrs. Trudeau said the prime minister had agreed to resign before the reconciliation attempt collapsed, the magazine says.

It says Mrs. Trudeau confided in 1977 that she had earlier had the affair with Kennedy.

She said her husband was extremely annoyed when he found out and she speculated about how traumatic it would be if Kennedy were elected president and the two men had to deal with each other as heads of government, the magazine says.

Uganda, Tanzania Both Claim Victory

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — Tanzania and Uganda both claim they won the largest battle of their nearly 5-month-old war, a clash in which hundreds of troops were reportedly killed on both sides and several warplanes shot down.

Tanzania's official press said Sunday two regular Ugandan army battalions — about 2,000 soldiers — "were almost totally annihilated" last week during a three-day battle in and around the town of Lukaya, 60 miles southwest of the Ugandan capital of Kampala.

The reports said huge quantities of recently imported Libyan military equipment was also captured.

But Uganda Radio, apparently reporting the same fighting, claimed 900 Tanzanian troops and supporting Ugandan exile guerrillas were killed and 500 wounded. Three tanks also were reported destroyed in the clashes.

The fighting was the largest reported battle since the war between the two east African neighbors erupted in late October when Ugandan President Idi Amin's army briefly invaded northern Tanzania.

After Amin withdrew, President Julius Nyerere of Tanzania retaliated by sending an invasion force of some 4,000 regular troops and Ugandan exiles into southern Uganda.

In a separate war communique, Tanzania also said three Ugandan warplanes were shot down Friday when they intruded into Tanzanian airspace, bringing to 21 the number of Ugandan aircraft reportedly shot down since the conflict began.

Independent diplomatic observers said details of the latest fighting were extremely sketchy but said the "kill figures" claimed by either side were obviously highly exaggerated.

The Tanzanians said the two battalions of Ugandan troops, supported by hundreds of Libyan and Palestinian soldiers, were wiped out as they approached Lukaya from Kampala to try to rout the invasion force moving steadily north toward Kampala.

Teamsters Approve Strike Vote

VANCOUVER (CP) — The province's 4,500 Teamsters have voted 93 per cent in favor of a strike but it will be two weeks before the union is in a legal position to walk off the job.

The strike vote announced here Sunday came after union members employed at eight federally-certified companies voted overwhelmingly to reject a contract offer by the Transport Labor Relations Association.

The association, which represents 96 trucking companies throughout the province, said earlier it would lock out Teamsters at all 96 companies if a strike went ahead.

Mediator Sought At Victoria Press

The Victoria Joint Council of Newspaper Unions is going to apply for a government mediator following the breakdown Sunday of contract negotiations with the Victoria Press division of F.P. Publications (Western) Ltd.

Council co-chairman Roger Stonebanks said today weekend talks broke off because the union negotiators felt the company's latest offer was totally unacceptable.

Contracts for the five unions involved, representing about 330 employees, expired Nov. 30, 1978.

The joint council wants a 14-per-cent wage increase in a one-year agreement while the company, which publishes the Victoria Times and The Daily Colonist, is proposing a three-year contract with a six-per-cent increase in the first and second years and five per cent in the third.

Most of the non-cost items have been settled and the remaining issues, aside from the term of the contracts, are cost items including a four-day work week for printers, vacations and manning.

the weather

Clear skies prevailed over most of B.C. overnight. Only a few patches of clouds were evident through the central interior. A high pressure area over B.C. is shunting incoming Pacific disturbances towards the northern Alaskan panhandle. Thus sunny skies are expected over the province during the next few days.

Tanker Stern Under Tow

HALIFAX (CP) — The stern section of what once was an oil tanker remained under tow today as salvage experts presented a plan to save the East Coast's fishing grounds from oil damage.

Eastern Canada Towing Ltd., the company which holds salvage rights over the wreck of the British tanker Kurdistan, was to make a presentation on how it will dispose of the wreck without threatening the environment.

The tanker broke in two Thursday night in the Cabot Strait and during a series of weekend meetings officials from the Canadian environment and transport ministries, among others, decided to haul the small bow section out to sea and sink it.

The larger stern section, containing an estimated 17,000 tons of the Kurdistan's 29,000 tons of Bunker C oil, has been under tow since Friday awaiting a decision whether to salvage or sink it.

A 65-year-old Philadelphia man and a police officer are recuperating from bites suffered in an encounter with what police described as a "demented, nude male." Police said officer James Farmbry found John Garrison, 65, being attacked and bitten by a man identified as Herman Gunther, 19. Garrison's wife told police the attack began when her husband answered the door. Farmbry lost the tip of his thumb when the man turned on him in the Saturday-night incident, police said. $33,000 a Year for Retarded Girl

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — A four-year-old El Cerrito, Calif., girl, born with brain damage her parents say was due to negligence, will receive $33,000 a year, with a three-per-cent increase each year. If she lives to age 72, the total would be about $6 million.

The out-of-court settlement came in a negligence suit filed by Adrienne Olmedo's parents, George and Raquel Olmedo, against Kaiser Hospital in Oakland.

The Olmedos sued after Adrienne was born in the Oakland hospital Jan. 2, 1975, with severe retardation and cerebral palsy.

The suit alleged that Mrs. Olmedo was given too much pitocin, a drug used to induce or speed up labor.

1979 VOLVO 242 'GT'

2-Door sports sedan with factory sunroof. Finished in Metallic Silver with accent stripes. Black corduroy upholstery with orange trim. The 5-speed overdrive transmission and 2.1 litre fuel injected motor, coupled with competition suspension, alloy wheels with Pirelli CN36 high speed radials, produce sports car handling. Functional front spoiler. Quartz iodine headlights plus driving lights complete the package.

Road & Track, March 1979, had these comments to make:

The 242GT is actually a very representative car of the last of the Seventies: it's not powered by any sort of unusually thirsty engine; it does have suspension refinements that make it more entertaining to drive, and it is a leader in occupant safety aspects, like downsized cars that haven't been downsized, because they have been the logical size all along. The efficient use of space is commendable and should be studied by some other carmakers. Then there's the big plus factor, Volvo's reputation for reliability. All in all, it's an excellent combination.

Bad driving

In its first report, the task force studying B.C. driving laws has come up with an excellent definition of the problem: many people, it says, just don't respect the current laws or the somewhat confusing system of demerit points and fines used to enforce them.

Anyone who has ever driven as far as from Victoria to Nanaimo on B.C. highways will recognize the truth of that complaint. Although most drivers obey the law most of the time, there's a substantial minority who wildly ignore speed limits, amber lights and nearly every other traffic regulation.

These drivers are, as the task force clearly points out, a hazard and a danger not only to themselves but to every user of the road. A quick study undertaken for the task force showed that drivers guilty of several offences were involved in more than twice the number of accidents that statistics suggest they should have been.

The original plan was to suspend licences of bad drivers once they had accumulated so many penalty points. But this system has proved quite unworkable. For one thing, a huge backlog has developed because the motor vehicle branch has to spend so much time suspending the licences of people who owe ICBC money rather than those who drive badly. For another, many people seem to ignore their suspensions and drive anyway.

The task force is thus quite right in stating that a new system must be developed.

Whether their solutions, however, are the best alternatives is much more doubtful. Essentially, the task force recommended that the demerit points system be scrapped and replaced with a system of more severe fines, that drivers with bad records be fined substantially and jailed if they don't pay and that persons caught driving while their licences are suspended be given a mandatory jail term.

Replacing demerits with fines might work, but it should be remembered that the very reason the demerit system was introduced was that the fine system didn't seem to be particularly effective. Moreover, it seemed to be capricious in that a $100 speeding fine would be a real hardship to some people but would scarcely be noticed by others.

This argument applies much more strongly to the proposal to jail those who fail to pay their driving fines. It is fair to jail people who obstinately and defiantly refuse to pay fines although they have plenty of money. A prison sentence would be totally unfair, however, for those who simply couldn't afford to pay. They would, in fact, be jailed because they are poor rather than because they are bad drivers.

Mandatory jail terms for those who drive while their licences are suspended sounds like a simple deterrent to that problem; yet it must be asked whether this would not create at least as many problems as it would solve.

As Victoria's deputy police chief Jim Smith remarked: "We should consider . . . what it's going to do to the jail system. Where are we going to put them all?"

The jail system was not designed to incarcerate thousands of bad drivers serving brief sentences. Moreover, the cost to society of locking them up may be more than the benefits of sending them there. Aside from the original cost of paying for their guards and food in jail, many people might lose their jobs, thus forcing society to pay support for them and their families for months afterwards.

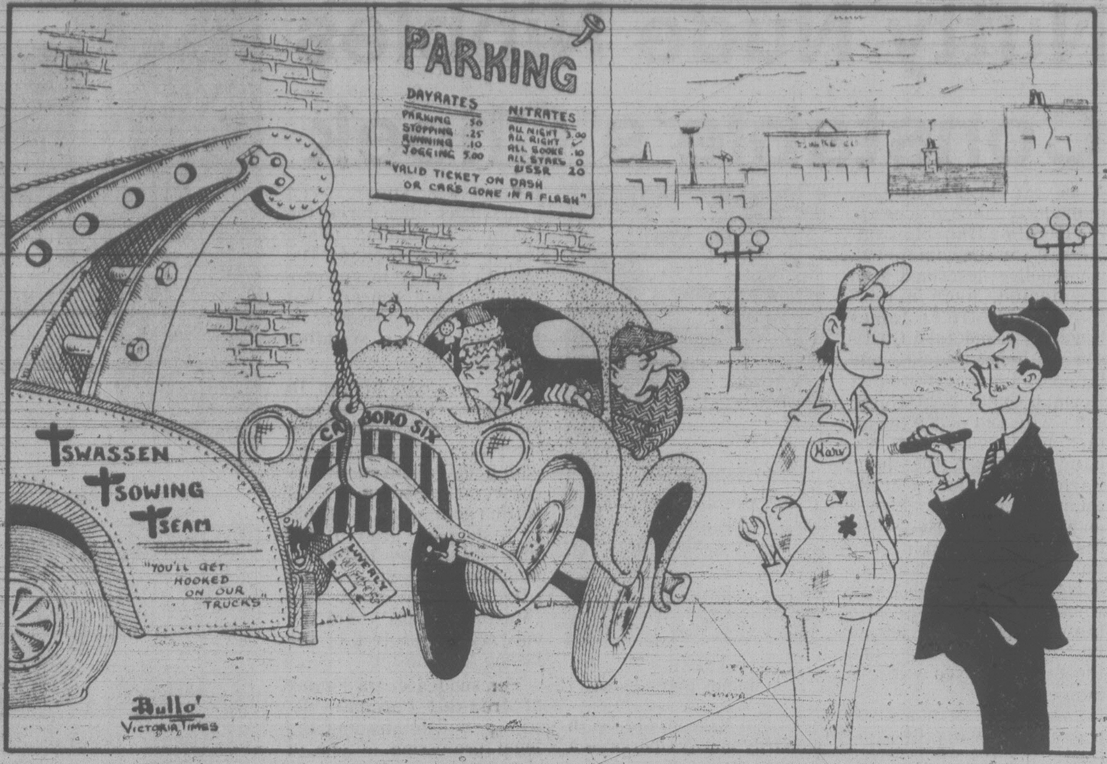
If an attempt was made to send them all to jail on weekends only, the prisons undoubtedly would become grossly overcrowded. We might get to the stage some European countries have reached where there is a waiting list for jail.

Surely it is not beyond the imagination of the task force to come up with some more creative and innovative solutions to the bad-driver problem. For instance, the educational course for impaired drivers has proved quite successful across the province. Perhaps a similar course could be developed for persons with long histories of speeding, running amber lights, ignoring stop signs and such.

Community service orders have also been a successful alternative to jail for many "minor" criminals. Maybe that program too could be adapted to meet the needs of the traffic system. Compelling those who have atrocious records or who drive while suspended to spend some time helping victims of traffic accidents might bring home the risks of their behavior more than a few days in jail would.

Doubtless those involved with traffic offenders — policemen, ambulance drivers, tow truck drivers and such — could think of other penalties that would relate closely to the offender's poor driving behavior.

Perhaps in this way B.C. would end up with laws that really come to grips with the problem of bad driving, not just with a tougher version of a system that has already been shown not to work well.



". . . your initiative's appreciated, old boy, but it's customary to let 'em park first . . ."

Gas pipeline bogged down

WASHINGTON — In the two weeks since Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau and President Jimmy Carter reaffirmed their commitment to the building of the Alaska natural gas pipeline, dozens of bureaucrats here have been burning the midnight oil in an effort to free the project from the regulatory gumbo in which it is now mired.

If their efforts have produced any movement, however, it is imperceptible to the human eye. A firm pledge has been made by the White House to forward to congress by April 1 the legislation to enable the appointment of a U.S. federal inspector for the project, who would be the American counterpart of the Canadian pipeline inspector, Mitchell Sharp.

Beyond that, the accelerated U.S. effort to push the project forward appears to have produced little but a chorus of renewed vows to try harder. Because of problems in the U.S., the pipeline project already has been delayed two years and further delay now seems likely.

System is villain

The U.S. problems do not derive from a lack of political conviction or bureaucratic incompetence or corporate cowardice. If that were the case, the obstacles could be identified and dealt with summarily.

No, the real villain in this piece is, as Trudeau observed at his last news conference in Ottawa, the U.S. form of government. He noted that the U.S. does not have "our great parliamentary system with a monarch at the top." Trudeau was speaking with tongue slightly in cheek, but that is in essence the American difficulty with this pipeline project: there is no one with the powers of a monarch, or a Canadian prime minister, to guarantee the expedition.

It may sound hyperbolic, but the drafting of the mideast peace treaty may prove an easier task for Carter than the construction of this 4,700-mile pipeline.

In his mideast negotiations, he Carter was not constrained by huge bodies of law limiting his actions. The president also negotiated with the knowledge that even this restraint-minded congress is unlikely to withhold the billions of dollars in aid provided for in the agreement.

Yet, in the case of the pipeline, the executive branch is virtually hogtied. No matter how badly Carter wants the pipeline, he does not have the authority to suspend laws or ignore established process. Nor, barring a catastrophic development in the world energy supply situation, could the president be assured that congress would provide the private builders of this project with a few billion dollars in government guarantees.

At a meeting of the executive policy board (the agency co-ordinating the pipeline efforts of all involved departments and agencies) a few days ago, the dilemma of this project was vividly demonstrated.

Representatives of the federal Energy Regulatory Commission, the office charged with certifying the project, volunteered to work overtime and through the weekend drafting land use regulations.

A few minutes later, however, the department of the interior announced that the regulations developed by the ERC for meeting equal employment opportunities legislation had been rejected. A young attorney for Alaska also announced that his state would demand much tighter control over law enforcement on the natural gas line right-of-way than had been required during construction of the oil pipeline through Alaska.

In short, for every gain, there seems to be an offsetting loss as the regulators struggle to meet the orders handed them by the president. The depth of the American frustration was even better demonstrated a few days later at a news conference called by the vice-chairman of the ERC, Don Smith.

Reporters attending the news conference had expected Smith to outline the specific steps his agency was taking to meet the president's expedition directive. Instead, Smith spent an hour discussing the findings of the Canadian National Energy Board's report on Canadian natural gas reserves.

What does it mean?

The commissioner argued that the report had sparked a great leap forward for the pipeline project because it said that Canadian reserves were less than had been expected. Most observers in Canada, at least, have put the precise opposite interpretation on the NEB findings — that the reserves were far more than expected.

Most significant, however, was the fact that the commissioner did not even mention the word "Alaska" in his analysis of the project, nor did he volunteer any encouragement that his agency would be able to expedite its own long-awaited rule-makings.

Smith also skirted another U.S. problem — the financial status of the U.S. builder, Northwest Alaskan Pipeline of Salt Lake City. Northwest has to date been unable to attract needed new partners to the venture.

Recently, some would-be Canadian investors representing two large Montreal-based life insurance companies made the trek to Washington to assess the project for themselves. They left town without disclosing their conclusions, but they did not look like men who believed they had just uncovered a potential investor jackpot.

PETER HADEKEL

Quebec cranks up rhetoric

QUEBEC — Politics in Quebec has always been a dirty game, but the upcoming referendum campaign on Quebec sovereignty will probably set new records for lies, distortions and low blows in a political campaign.

The rhetoric is already starting to heat up as the separatists and federalists stake out their positions for the referendum to be held this fall or next spring.

The latest volley in the war of words comes from Intergovernmental Affairs Minister Claude Morin — a politician who has no equal in sophistry. Morin has been forced to respond to the growing chorus of political voices in English Canada who say they will not negotiate sovereignty-association with Quebec.

These affirmations — the latest comes from Ontario Premier William Davis — chip away at the PQ argument that everything will be rosy after independence. The PQ has been trying to woo Quebec voters with the assurance that English Canada cannot afford to break its economic association with Quebec.

'Trying to demoralize'

Now that no federal or provincial politician (except maybe a David Crombie) is willing to bargain with Quebec for an economic union, Morin has revised his referendum strategy.

In a toughly worded speech this week, he accused English-Canadian politicians [illegible] waging "an intimidation campaign" abainst Quebec by refusing to negotiate.

"This negative attitude (which is so unrealistic when one considers the economic advantages Ontario enjoys in its trade with Quebec) is obviously a tactic to demoralize Quebecers before the referendum," he said.

Morin is now painting English Canada's refusal to negotiate with Quebec as another injustice to francophones, another argument to vote "yes" on the referendum.

"These declarations are coming from the same people who, a few years ago, rejected just as strongly the idea of special status for Quebec," the minister said.

"I'm willing to bet that these same people will be the first to reject any serious form of renewed federalism if this were the option advocated by the Quebec government."

Here is where Morin's argument starts to break down. Among those premiers who have refused to negotiate an economic association with Quebec are Saskatchewan's Allan Blakeney and Alberta's Peter Lougheed, but these same men advocate many of the same constitutional reforms that previous Quebec governements have demanded.

In fact most provincial premiers want serious constitutional reform. The PQ government has done more than anyone else to obstruct this process at constitutional conferences. But in Morin's mind, English Canada is conspiring to keep Quebec down.

CLAUDE MORIN
. . . using desperate arguments

"Basically, these people don't want any change because they believe that the Quebecois do not form a nation but rather a large ethnic minority of decreasing importance," he said.

"According to them . . . any proposition to increase the political power of the Quebecois and their capacity to control their own destiny should be attacked, rejected and if necessary ridiculed.

"We have to realize what is going on," Morin continued. "Outside Quebec, everything is being refused: separation, sovereignty, association, special status, renewed federalism. The system is blocked. Only the referendum can open new perspectives."

Morin is appealing to the undecided voters in Quebec, the ones frustrated by the lack of constitutional change. He is telling them there is no political will for change outside Quebec and no desire to recognize Quebec as a distinct national society.

"A positive referendum will have an immense political weight and will give Quebecers the power they have sought for so long to break the impasse. That is why English Canada is doing all it can to make us lose it," he said.

The PQ is clearly searching for emotional issues to use in the referendum — issues which will pit French against English and fire Quebec's national pride.

But Morin's distorted arguments sound terribly hollow. Liberal leader Claude Ryan is a lot more eloquent in his recent policy paper describing with ample documentation how Quebec has benefitted from the federal link.

Case growing weaker

Yet Morin finds it difficult to stomach the rising prestige of the Liberal leader. He insinuated in his speech that Ryan is a traitor to the Quebec people by arguing for a "no" on the referendum.

"I [illegible] impression," said Morin, "that he is rebuffing Quebec nationalism — that feeling of belonging to Quebec which we normally all share no matter what our political affiliation."

He accused the Liberal leader of setting up "a storefront" for the federal government and even complained that the word "Quebec" was absent from the table of contents in Ryan's document.

Morin conveniently forgets Ryan's long history of constitutional reform demands in Le Devoir editorials, when he says that the only "Quebec option" is the PQ option.

The increasingly desperate arguments that PQ ministers are now using in favor of sovereignty simply reflect how weak their case has become inside Quebec.

World resources

In his letter, Fragile Resources, James P. Thornton implies that vast reserves of metals and petroleum lie beneath our feet, their discovery and use prevented only by politicians dragging their feet with respect to granting exploration permits to the industries involved.

While Mr. Thornton may be correct about the reserves, he fails to take into account the fact that these resources must be easily accessible and relatively close to transportation, otherwise it is not economically feasible to extract them.

Unfortunately, mankind is fast using the known, easily accessible finite earth resources. We are facing a permanent world oil crisis because the easily available sources, which supply half the world's energy and most of the world's plastics and drugs, are scheduled to run out towards the end of this century. According to the U.S. Bureau of Mines, world reserves of the 16 most important metals are in desperately short supply; we are already scraping the bottom of the barrel for copper; we have enough mercury for about 13 more years.

However, Mr. Thornton's point concerning the so-called "renewable" resources is well-taken. World fish supplies are being exhausted and some species are already extinct; the great whales are vanishing because of overfishing. Forests are systematically disappearing through over-exploitation. The supply of safe, fresh water is getting scarce.

The World Federalists have a solution to the problem Mr. Thornton so cogently expressed in his letter: our proposal is that a world federal resources agency should be set up immediately to co-ordinate research and development of new energy sources, such as solar, wind, tides, waves and geothermal. This same agency would also regulate the exploitation of existing world reserves of minerals, fauna and flora by means of world laws formulated to prevent national governments from abusing the scarcity of materials for their own political or economic purposes.

Concerned citizens like Mr. Thornton would be welcome additions to the Victoria Branch, World Federalists of Canada. The organization is part of a global association which operates in more than 40 countries. It is nonpartisan but its members include 90 Canadian parliamentarians, 50 per cent of the Japanese government, and 80 per cent of the Danish government, all of varying political stripe. We believe in world peace through world law, so that the peoples of the world would be united and mankind can be saved from destroying itself. — Gillian Wadsworth Minifie, 300 Beaumont Avenue.

Quebecers in war

In your issue of Feb. 1, under the headline Old War Wounds Open, you attribute to a Mr. Charles-Arthur Gauthier, described as Social Credit parliamentary leader, two statements to the House: "Our French boys were used as a buffer to protect the Anglophones" and "Over 1,000 of our young people (Quebecers) were butchered in the battlefield."

As regards the second statement, I would be interested in learning where he obtained the figure of 4,000 and also what he means by it. Does it mean fatalities or does it mean total casualties, which would include wounded, prisoners of war, etc.

Regarding the first statement, I can only say that it is patently ridiculous. The French-Canadian units overseas were our comrades in arms, who distinguished themselves in many a battle and made a valiant contribution to the cause for which we all, as Canadians, were fighting. But they were so few that they themselves must laugh at Mr. Gauthier's statement that they were "used as a buffer to protect the anglophones."

After all, Quebec, with about a third of the Canadian population at the time, provided only a twentieth of the manpower of our armed forces — and that twentieth included anglophone units such as the Royal Highlanders of Canada (Black Watch) and others.

Canadian casualties in the three services exceeded 100,000, including 42,000 dead. If Mr. Gauthier's figure of 4,000 means total Quebec casualties, it would appear to be in proportion considering the relatively small number of Quebecers involved. — Major A. M. Millar, President, Seaforth Highlanders of Canada Regimental Association.

Makes us poorer

Dr. Calvert of CUPE 'Prices, Profits Outstripped Wages': CUPE; Times, March 12) points the finger at high profits. Actually, he, and all other trade unionists should go down on their knees and thank God every time they hear that an industry or a firm is making high profits, — or any profits, because it is only out of profits that wages can be paid. No profits, the concern goes broke, no wages either. How does he think the IWA can be asking for large increases this year except that the forest industry is doing well and can afford to pay?

Moreover it is only from the profits of industry that all "service" industries such as CUPE can exist. However valuable their work is to us, we would have to forego it if industry wasn't capable of carrying this burden on its back.

After 30 years of annual increases, it is hard for anyone of this generation to believe that the only way inflation can be cured is for everyone to stay put at his present income, and for governments and people to live within their income. Believe it or not wage "catching" up simply makes everyone poorer. — James P. Thornton, 943 Wilmer Street.

Doctors' pullout threatens Medicare plans

OTTAWA — In the face of an inflation rate that has persisted in the neighborhood of nine per cent, industrial wage settlements in recent months have crept up from the seven per cent range to about eight per cent.

The result has been much hand-wringing about the prospect of a return to double-digit wage increases leading to a reimposition of controls.

"Canadians can expect industrial relations to become increasingly turbulent during 1979," the Conference Board predicted the other day, as it joined Prime Minister Trudeau and a host of other early warners on the hand-wringing line.

Actually, in view of the inflation rate, workers have been remarkably restrained in their wage demands. The only notable exception to this has been the members of one of Canada's highest-income professions, the white smock workers of the doctoring industry.

Collective bargaining usually follows a time-worn formula, with the threat of a strike looming over negotiations for a long time before it ever comes to pass.

In the case of doctors, however, the scenario is very different. In fact, it could be argued that a significant proportion of the doctors in Ontario, Manitoba and Alberta are already on strike, although none of them have left their jobs.

Unlike most employers, provincial medicare commissions control only one aspect of doctors' jobs — their fees.

For a doctor in Ontario, Manitoba or any of a half-dozen other provinces, going on strike means opting out of the provincial medicare plan and billing patients for more than the fees set by it.

In Ontario, 18 per cent of the province's doctors have already opted out of the medicare program and, according to a recent survey, another 10 per cent are threatening to join them unless the government agrees to medical association demands for an almost 40-per-cent increase in fees.

In Manitoba, 10 per cent of the province's practitioners have thus far opted out.

By LEONARD SHIFRIN

The Alberta situation is somewhat different, in that a doctor can't opt out of medicare, but he can "extra-bill" his patient for an amount in excess of the medicare fee.

No one knows how many doctors have adopted this practice in recent months, but the number is believed to be substantial. To find out how substantial, the province's health care commission recently sent a questionnaire to 10,000 patients asking if they had been extra-billed, but it is expected to be several months before the results are known.

Ottawa, which contributes half the financing for provincial medicare programs, has been watching the situation in the three provinces with growing alarm.

In answer to questions on the House of Commons, Prime Minister Trudeau warned that if the essential principles of medicare ceased to exist in a province, the federal government would "operate sanctions of some kind."

Health Minister Monique Begin followed with a declaration that Ottawa would "seek out directly the information we need to decide . . . if it's time to withold payments".

But getting the information isn't really the problem. Deciding what to do with it is.

Is there a magic number, a minimum acceptable percentage of doctors accepting the medicare fee in full payment, for a province to be in compliance with the requirements for federal funding? Or are the province-wide numbers not even the relevant ones?

The 18 per cent figure for opted-out doctors in Ontario, for example, covers such vastly different situations as the two per cent who have opted out of the plan in Thunder Bay and the 47 per cent who have withdrawn in Peterborough.

And what if the opting out is heavily concentrated in certain specialties so that a comprehensive range of medical services is no longer available?

Even if Ottawa manages to figure its way through that thicket of questions for which answers have never been defined in the federal-provincial agreements, what comes next is the issue of how much of a province's federal funding is at risk.

Until two years ago, the federal contributions to medicare, hospital insurance and post-secondary education were calculated separately, according to three different formulas. But since 1977 they have been merged into the single formula of Established Programs Financing (EPF).

If Ontario, for instance, fails to meet the medicare criteria, should it lose all its federal money under EPF? If not, what proportion should it lose?

Even if there were clear answers to all of those questions, the political implications of "dropping the bomb" are such that it is highly unlikely the federal government would ever actually cut off a province's funding.

In other words, notwithstanding its current sabre rattling, don't look to Ottawa for a resolution of the turbulence in the medicare industry. The provinces are going to have to meet the test on their own.

Ban on Casinos lifted

Aussie gamblers find new way to lose

By GRAHAM LEES

SYDNEY — Gambling-crazy Australians are about to get their first real chance of trying their luck at the casino tables.

After years of official disapproval of what many were still regard as the ultimate dens of iniquity, the country will soon break out in a rash of legalized casinos.

Australia at present possesses only one legitimate casino and that is tucked away on the small island state of Tasmania, off the south-east coast. Now, after its sixth year of operation — during which the island's tourist industry has prospered, state tax coffers have swelled and the local populace remained solvent — other state governments are softening their disdain for roulette, blackjack and the like.

In the Northern Territory, where there are still more sheep and cattle than people, the government has approved the establishment of two ambitious gambling centres. New South Wales, the most populous state, looks like getting at least six casinos, and even in traditionally conservative Victoria officials are to receive a deputation from one of Britain's biggest casino chain operators.

The irony of the long-standing ban on casinos is that Australia's 14.5 million inhabitants already manage to spend aobut $11 billion a year on gambling — more per head than Americans, Canadians or Britons.

The national outlay on gambling is more than the country's annual food bill and represents almost 18 per cent of the total household disposable income.

They chance their luck on horse and dog racing, lotteries, gaming machines and the soccer pools — betting on the fortunes of the British football leagues. Australia has 600 racing clubs, 19,000 racehorses and seven times the number of race-courses that Britain can muster.

Through the years the churches have been a powerful influence in encouraging politicians to maintain the casino ban, and religious leaders have already reacted angrily to the New South Wales government's proposals to legalize them.

The change of heart in New South Wales follows a discreet tour of some of London's more exclusive casinos by state Premier Neville Wran during a trade visit to Britain recently.

Premier Wran said he was impressed by the quiet, unobtrusiveness of the London gambling houses and intended that any casinos in his state would follow the British style rather than the razzle-dazzle of America's Las Vegas.

Sydney's director of World Evangelism for the World Methodist Council, the Reverend Alan Walker, immediately attacked the idea as a social evil which would be "measured in terms of human misery and increased poverty." Other church leaders were similarly outraged.

But if Premier Wran intends to try to pacify his opponents by making New South Wales casinos stricly private clubs for the committed gambler and beyond the reach of the casual punter, the Northern Territory government plans to inject some color into the night-life of its frontier country.

Approval has been granted for the building of hotel-casino-entertainment complexes in Darwin, the city devastated by cyclone Tracy in 1974, and Alice Springs, the little town sitting in the heart of the vast Australian continent.

The Northern Territory government is anxious that the two planned casinos, which should be operating by the end of 1981, will have all the attributes of Las Vegas. The government wants to foster the local tourist industry and clearly believes that the territory's spectacular scenery and unique Aboriginal art treasures are insufficient.

The Alice Springs complex will be housed next to an expanded golf course and horse-riding stables. The hotel will also include swimming pools, bars, restaurants and entertainment and convention centres.

The Darwin casino is expected to feature the Chinese game of fan tan, both to cater to the large local Chinese population and attract the wealthier Chinese gamblers of Singapore and other parts of South-East Asia. Package holidays are already being discussed with Singapore Airlines.

The man who won the two casino licences, Greg Farrell, believes he can help double the territory's tourist trade in four years. He should know better than most because his company, Federal Pacific Hotels, also owns the Tasmanian casino in Hobart.

In the six years since the Hobart casino opened, six million people have either tried their luck at the tables or stopped by to watch the action. In that time the number of tourists visiting Tasmania has doubled, bringing a boom which has transformed Hobart, a state capital of only 150,000 people.

The Tasmanian government is so pleased with the result of its bold decision to permit the casino (especially with the total tax bounty to date of nearly $12 million) that it has approved the establishment of another one in the island's second city of Launceston.

One special feature of Australia's new casinos is certain to be Two Up, a simple game involving tossing two coins into the air and shouting bets on whether they both land heads or tails up. It was devised by early settlers, popularized by wartime Australian soldiers, is highly illegal (except in Hobart) and is most often played in pubs on Anzac Day when the country's old soldiers gather to pay their annual respect to fallen comrades.

The paper tiger blues

NEW YORK — Morgue photographs of the shah's generals remind us again that tough guys may also finish last. Though exiled in somewhat warmer circumstances, the shah himself has finished well out of the money despite considerable toughness.

They are not the only cautions afforded by recent history to proponents of muscularity and the hard-nosed. The "gang of four" in China, Pol Pot in Cambodia, Indira Gandhi in India, and closer to home, Richard Nixon and colleagues Mitchell, Haldeman and Erlichman all offer evidence that tough guys and gals tempt history to play nasty jokes.

The point is worth keeping in mind as political pressures increase on President Carter to start getting tough with a world that seems to become more and more churlish in its relations with the United States.

Having pursued a policy based on the assumption that we lack both power and willingness to pay the price necessary to control events on distant continents, Carter is now accused of softness. Liberals in his own party, as well as Conservatives who have been traditionally more bellicose, are beginning to murmur that the president is a sissy.

It is hard to see how any president less secure in his manhood than a famous warrior — Eisenhower, say — can submit to this sort of criticism without inviting defeat, first in Congress, then in his re-election campaign. Tough guys may finish last, too, but we are a people bred by thousands of hours in movie houses to expect that even Shane will strap on his shooting irons and ride to town when the insolence of louts becomes insupportable.

The political pressure to assert the nation's manhood against such challenges, even when prospects for success in the shoot-out seem remote, was a factor that drove both Kennedy and Johnson ever deeper into Vietnam. Playing the tough guy may be madness in the long run, but elections are held in the short run and even presidents sometimes have to let the future take care of itself.

The pressure on Carter to get tough is now so intense that it is hard to see how he can avoid it much longer. There was always a political opposition that resented the assumption of limitations on American power. The defeat in Vietnam left resentments smoldering. The power of the international oil cartel to accelerate inflation and debase the dollar has long been a bone in the throat of American nationalism.

Add to this Fidel Castro's insouciant military adventuring in Africa and the administration's reluctance to meet it with gunfire, and you heighten the anger of thos [illegible] see the country becoming, in Nixon's phrase, "a pitiful, helpless giant."

The Panama Canal settlement, despite its merits, obviously intensified fears that American power was eroding, and now during the past few weeks the Carter administration has suffered a battering of indignities.

The collapse of the shah was embarrassing enough. The open criticism of Teng Hsiao-ping that Carter had dealt with the Iranian crisis from a position of flabbiness did not help matters, particularly in view of criticism from both liberals and conservatives that in breaking treaty ties with Taiwan, Carter had dealt with Teng from a position of flabbiness.

The policy of restraint, it seemed, encouraged friend as well as enemy only to leave a glove in the president's face. Off he went to Mexico for a series of admonitory lectures from President Lopez Portillo. Very good for Senor Lopez Portillo's political standing at home. Not so good for Carter, who was left looking like a scolded schoolboy.

In the same week, an American ambassador was murdered in Afghanistan and the Arab oil states of Abu Dhabi and Qatar took the opportunity to put another needle under Yankee skin by hiking oil prices once more, thus insuring us of a higher inflation rate and increasing chances of economic recession.

It takes little imagination to foresee the kind of political campaign Republicans and ambitious Democrats will wage against an administration that seems to be at the mercy of the rest of the world. This is why it will not be surprising if President Carter suddenly begins to search for ways to disprove the accusation that he is a paper tiger.

Getting tough, of course, guarantees nothing. Witness the shah's generals. Witness Lyndon Johnson's abandonment of the presidency. Witness Richard Nixon's resignation. Until the voters discover again, however, that the world can be just as intractable to the tough as it is to the gentle, getting tough may help a president win a second term, for whatever that may be worth.

Symphony, Conductor Out of Step

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

Robert Silverman's affectionate and scintillating performance of that lyrically charming chestnut, the Grieg Piano Concerto in A minor, provided Sunday's Victoria Sumphony audience with its best compensation for being indoors on a perfect spring afternoon.

The University of B.C.-based pianist has donated his services for this pair of concerts and they are an invaluable gift.

Guest conductor Gregory Millar of the Regina Symphony is on the podium, presenting, in addition to the Grieg, works by Rossini, John Weinzweig and Sibelius.

For whatever cause, and in spite of Millar's sturdy conducting style and positive beat, the orchestra appeared minutely out of step on this occasion. There were some slipshod entries in the Grieg — just enough of a delay at times to make Silverman and the orchestra dis-join each other briefly, like a camera lens image that is not quite in focus.

In the final movement there are stirring passages in which the pianist weaves glistening ripples of scales up and down the keyboard against deep throated orchestral color. On Sunday the impact of this climactic section was spoiled by overwhelming brass. Silverman's virtuosic hands were racing up and down without audible effect.

Nevertheless, the pianist's notable qualities of sensitivity, the warmth and luminosity of his tone production and vivid technical capability will make him a welcome guest when, hopefully, he returns at a later date.

Rossini's martial overture to his opera La Gazza Ladra (The Thieving Magpie), gave Sunday's concert an uncertain introduction. Millar's tempos were in general rather too fast and inconsistent and the orchestra gave the impression of being driven, rather than conducted through the work.

Weinzweig is a Canadian composer of genuine distinction and his Edge of the World is in every sense a tone poem — superbly atmospheric, filled with marvellous tonal images and subtlties. Unfortunately in this the orchestra was frequently not together and Millar permitted an unpleasing coarseness of texture to appear in the tutti as the storm climax develops.

The major work on the program is the Sibelius Symphony No.2 in D Major, a splendid, impassioned work written in heroic yet intensely human terms. Its successful performance requires a total empathy between conductor and orchestra,a close-knit and acute responsiveness and vitality on the part of the players. If these things are not present what happens is what we heard on Sunday, where the balance of orchestral forces was uneven and the total effect, despite some well-played passages by individuals and most sections now and then, became disjointed and smudged the imagery.

Tonight's repeat of the program at University Centre could be quite different, no two live performances ever being exactly the same. And as there is such considerable room for improvement, the Monday audience may indeed be better served.

Dance Company Plus-Laden

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

The full-scale debut of Spectrum Dance Theatre at McPherson Playhouse, Sunday, is not something that will quickly fade from memory.

This, Victoria's first seriously-intentioned company, has so many pluses going for it that its weaknesses, and there were a few, are relatively inconsequential.

Presenting a full length program under the title Sundance, Spectrum's artistic director-choreographer Constantine Darling revealed a glowing imagination and a genius for using the materials available to him to optimum advantage.

Style, discipline and sheer talent vary to some extent, from those who are clearly professional, to a few who still have a distance to go. Nevertheless the overall aspect makes Spectrum Dance Circus a very good looking and promising company.

The major fault with the program is length. It could be cut by a third without impairing its impact.

In style there is a good command of variety, from the very effective (but too long) modern symbolical piece, Tree of Life, to the fast moving jazz piece, Razz Ma Tazz, and including the classical Concerto da Camera, danced to a Bach Brandenburg Concerto, well played by pianist Arthur Lavertu, violinist P. Abbott, flutist Rod Sharman and members of Sharman's orchestra.

One of the evening's pluses in fact, was not only the presence of live musicians, but the fact that they were very capable and blended so well into the whole concept. Sharman conducted the ensemble and composed and arranged some of the music.

An outstanding example was the quite beautiful and moving effect of Betsy Burke's remarkable contralto singing Sometimes I Feel Like a Motherless Child to a moving solo danced by Gretchen Kritch with Oscar Corletto and Ron Ffitch.

The program ended with Jumping Mouse, a composite piece involving mime, acting, music and dance, based on an Indian story. Choreographed by Darling, with Barbara Poggemiller in the title role and David Dressler as the Shaman, the music and lyrics composed by Ralph Cole, this was highly effective and moving theatre.

"Pure dynamite."

London Meal Out Getting Expensive

LONDON (AP) — London, never renowned for haute cuisine, is fast becoming one of the most expensive European capitals for dining out, says Christopher Driver, author of The Good Food Guide.

Driver's book is the British equivalent of France's Michelin Guide.

Driver, scourge of British restaurateurs, this year criticizes their "arrogance and self-satisfaction," which he says "has become more noticeable because of the trade's success." More Britons are eating out these days.

After last year's guide was published, 25 leading restaurant owners wrote to The Times complaining about the "acid disparagement of his remarks."

Driver concedes the general standard of restaurant meals in Britain has improved during the last decade, but attributes this to "amateurs or immigrants . . . working in the teeth of accountants and food synthesizers . . . who exist to slice the customer as thin as they slice their own roasts."

Driver says the price of dinner in an average London restaurant — not in the Savoy or Mirabelle class but better than the corner food bars — is about £9 ($21) compared with £7.50 ($18) in Copenhagen, £7 ($17) in Paris and £3 ($7) in Rome.

More than 1,000 eating places are mentioned in the 1979 guide but Driver has cut the number of restaurants awarded distinctions for food, wine and comfort from last year's 74 to 65 this year. Only two — The Connaught in London and the Miller Howe in Westmoreland County, heart of the Lake District — get the highest accolade of three distinctions.

Nuns Lose China Property Claim

WEST PATERSON, N.J. (AP) — An order of Roman Catholic nuns has been blocked by a legal hurdle from collecting $134,000 from China for property seized more than 30 years ago.

The claim by the Missionary Sisters of the Immaculate Conception was based on the loss of two orphanages, a hospital and a school abandoned in 1948 when communist troops swept through Tianjing (Tientsin) and Shandong (Shantung) provinces in China.

The Foreign Claims Settlement Commission rejected the claim because of a regulation that no corporation with less than 50 per cent American membership may make a claim.

"Only about 25 per cent of our sisters are American," said Sister Kathleen Keefe at the motherhouse at West Paterson. "But what doesn't make sense is the regulations say nothing about where the money came from. It was raised, at least 90 per cent, by contributions from Americans. And we are based in this country."

China has agreed to settle claims by paying $80.5 million, about 41 per cent of the $197 million in claims filed by U.S. citizens and corporations.

Vance to Namibia

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — U.S. Secretary of State Cyrus Vance today headed a last ditch effort by the Western powers to create an independent Namibia in South West Africa by conducting free elections and setting up a constituent assembly under UN supervision and protection.

Vance, British Foreign Secretary David Owen and representatives from Canada, France and West Germany met with UN Secretary General Kurt Waldheim for 90 minutes Sunday at UN headquarters on the Namibian problem.

Details of the talks were not disclosed.

Billed as "proximity talks" between South African and the leaders of nationalist black Namibian guerillas, the negotiations in the next two days were aimed at overcoming the existing hardcore obstacles to the UN plan for transition to independence.

At hand for the talks were Foreign Minister Roelof Botha of South Africa and Sam Nujoma, President of the militant South West Africa People's Organization, which controls the guerrilas.

Besides Waldheim, others invited to participate include the five African "front line" states — Angola, Botswana, Mozambique, Tanzania and Zambia — as well as Nigeria, black Africa's most populous and economically strongest nation.

In the past weeks, South Africa bitterly complained about what it believes is a Western attempt to change the plan under pressure from SWAPO and the black Africans.

The $300 million project, providing for a peace-keeping force of up to 7,500 men, was worked out by Britain, Canada, France, West Germany and the United States in almost two years of negotiations and approved last year by the UN Security Council.

Botha has categorically declared South Africa had given its final approval to the original version of the plan and would not be pressured into any further concessions.

He insists that the plan provided UN surveillance of SWAPO military camps in the front line states, and that the UN can not set up bases or camps for guerrillas surrendering after the intended armistice.

Any SWAPO military presence within Namibia, even if guarded by UN troops, would, in South Africa' view, influence the elections.

Northern Telecom is cracking some of the world's toughest markets. By proving Canadians can do it better.

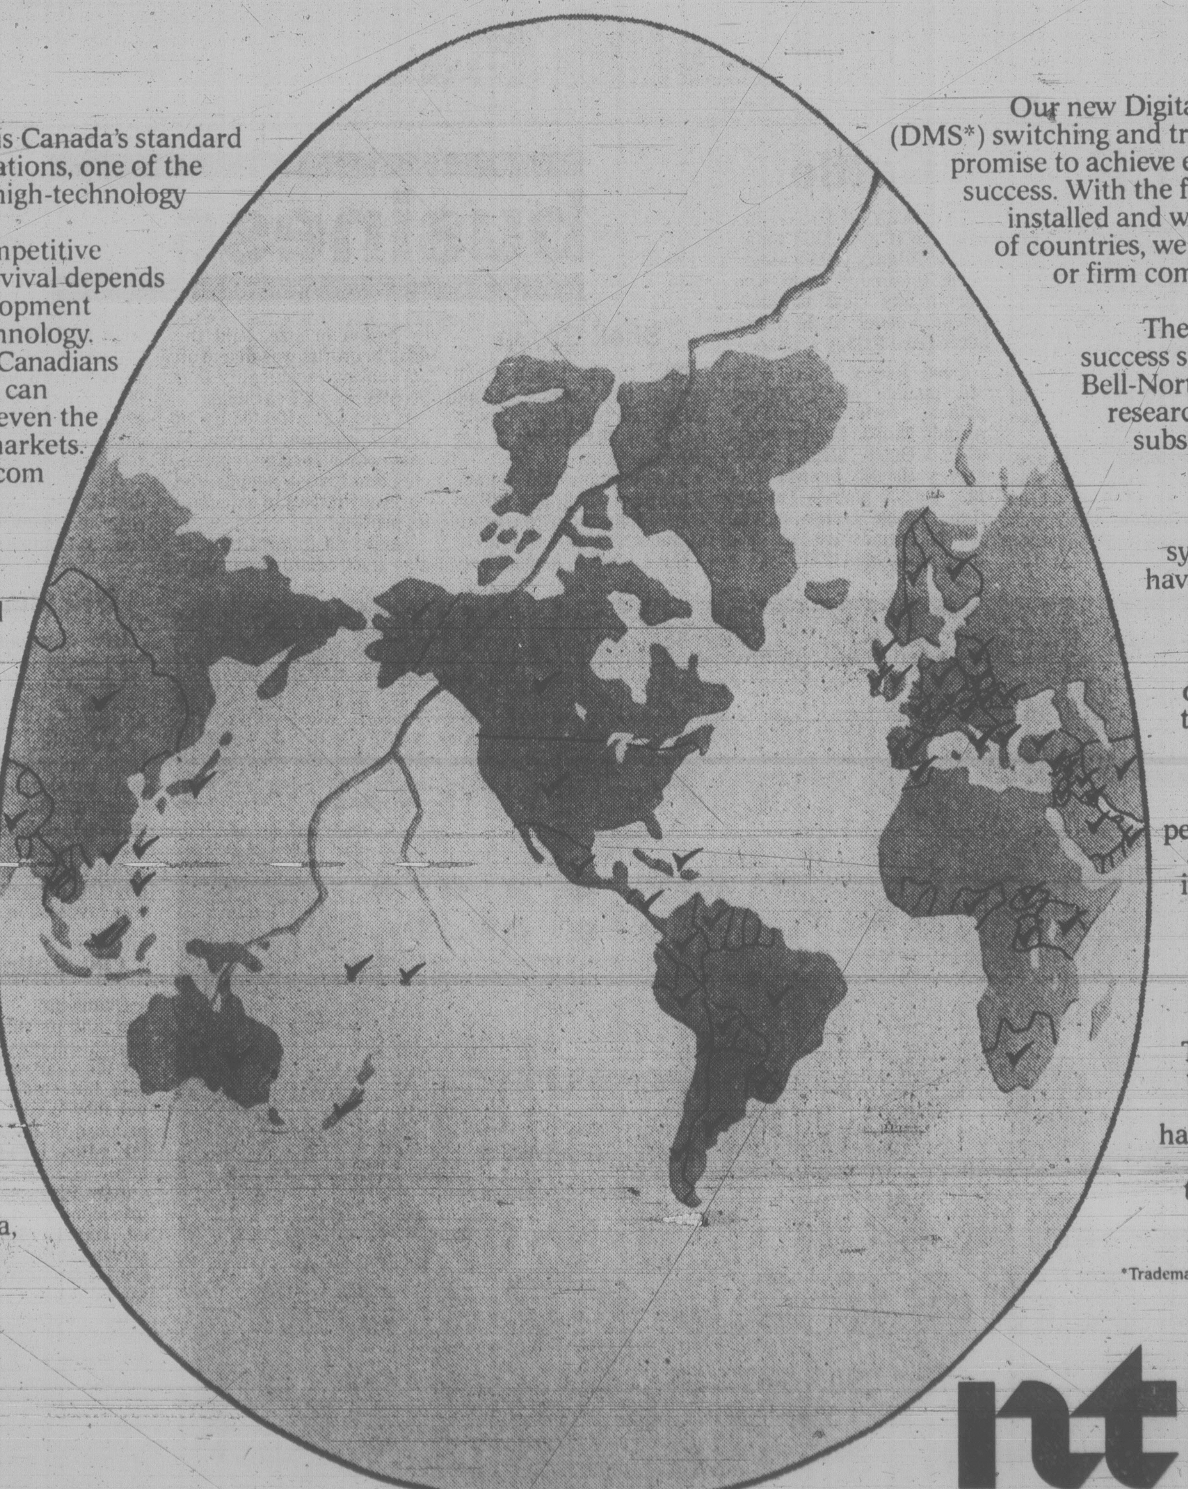
Northern Telecom is Canada's standard bearer in telecommunications, one of the world's fastest-growing high-technology industries.

It's an intensely competitive business. One where survival depends on the continuous development of new and superior technology.

We're proving that Canadians can not only survive but can compete successfully in even the toughest international markets.

The Northern Telecom SP-1 is the most-used electronic switching system among independent telephone companies in the United States today.

The Northern Telecom SL*-1 is the world's first fully digital business communications system. It has been actively sought after by European telephone administrations for local manufacture. In little more than three years, nearly 800 SL-1 systems have been sold or are on order in Canada, the U.S. and in 16 other countries around the world. The SL-1 continues to open new markets to us throughout Europe, Asia, and the Middle East.



Our new Digital Multiplex System (DMS*) switching and transmission systems promise to achieve even more dramatic success. With the first systems already installed and working in a number of countries, we have sold, on order or firm commitments for more than 600 systems.

These are typical of the success stories originating in Bell-Northern Research, our research and development subsidiary and Canada's largest industrial research facility. Northern Telecom systems and products have been sold successfully in 90 different countries. In 1978, fully 32 percent of our telecommunications manufacturing sales were outside Canada. This international growth permits us to increase our already large investments in R&D in Canada – which, in turn, creates more jobs for Canadians. And enables Northern Telecom to continue to develop the superior technology that has played a large part in making Canada's telecommunications network the best in the world.

The market also was encouraged by news that the Israeli cabinet had given its approval to the Arab-Israeli peace treaty, paving the way to a possible signing of the pact within a week. But analysts expressed uneasiness about the hostility shown the treaty by some Arab countries.

Shell Group

The Royal Dutch Shell group, the world's second largest oil company, reported its profits fell by 21 per cent last year.

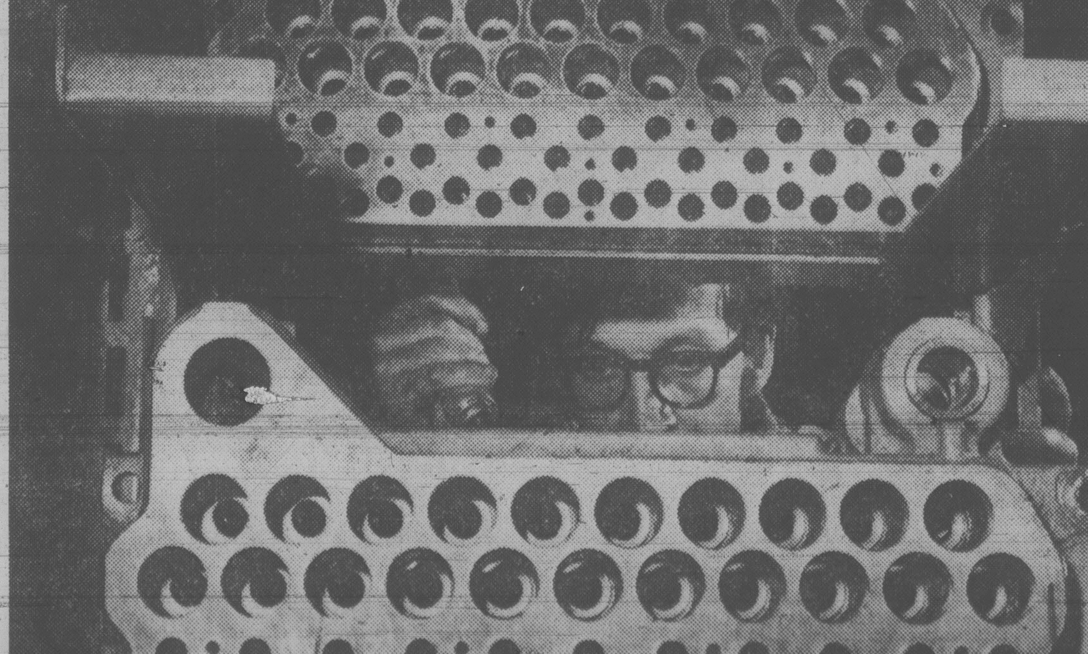
The company said it made a profit of about $2.2 billion U.S., compared with a profit of about $2.8 billion in 1977.

Royal Dutch, second only to Exxon in size, said the drop in profits was due to an accounting technicality that boosted its 1977 earnings.

It also was affected by an accounting rule relating to converting foreign currencies into British pounds, the currency it uses to calculate its profits.

Shell said its profits were also hurt because earnings from its Shell Oil Company and Shell Canada subsidiaries were lower than in 1977 when converted into pounds because of the weakness of the Canadian and U.S. dollars.

The company reported that its total sales last year rose to about $58.4 billion from $57 billion in 1977.



PRESSURE CLEANING a valve block of ductile iron to ensure smooth surfaces is a step in the production of a 23-ton glass container-making machine at Emhart Corporation's Hartford Division in Windsor, Conn. The multinational company has reported $5 million in orders from two South Korean glass firms for machines to produce beer bottles, drinking glasses and vitamin-drink bottles.

GHI Mortgage

GHI Mortgage Investors reports net income of $730,257 or $1.61 a unit for 1978, compared with net income of $633,190 or $1.46 a unit a year earlier.

The company's latest annual report says mortgage loans totalled nearly $10.4 million last year. Most of the loans were commercial mortgages, and about three-quarters of the total amount was invested in Alberta.

OK Helicopters

Okanagan Helicopters Ltd. and its subsidiaries reported increased revenues for the year ending Jan. 31, 1979 but said earnings did not show a comparable gain because of depressed charter rates in eastern Canada.

John Pitts, chairman and president, said the unaudited figures for the year showed gross revenues of $42,541,000, compared with $36,585,000 the year before.

Net earnings for the period just ended were $1,281,000 or $1.20 a share, up slightly from $1,249,000 or $1.16 a share the year before.

Pitts said that a large part of the increased revenue was generated from international business which showed a strong upward trend toward the end of the year and is expected to continue in the current year.

Bread Waste Denied

TORONTO (CP) — Bakeries in Toronto waste no more than 10,000 loaves of bread a week, the president of Canada's largest bakery says.

Frank Riddell, president of Weston Bakeries Ltd., denied a statement by Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan that bakeries in Toronto waste more than 100,000 loaves a week. Whelan made the statement Friday in the Commons.

Stale bread, returned to Weston's after two days on store shelves, is given to charities, sold at a discount or made into poultry stuffing and animal feed, Riddell said.

Faulty Accounting Behind Misleading Rise in Profits

OTTAWA (CP) — With the sheepish wisdom of retrospect, the country's 28,000 chartered accountants now concede they could have helped avert the current controversy over profits.

The issue — which has pitted unions against management, the New Democrats against the government and consumer groups against business — is that profits appear to have risen at a startling rate last year.

After-tax profits of major Canadian companies for 1978 were up by 26 per cent. The pulp and paper industry reported an 86.2-per-cent increase over the previous year, department store profits were up by almost 60 per cent, base metal industries reported a 44-per-cent increase and bank profits for the year were up 33 per cent.

Chartered accountants, the men and women whose signature has to go at the bottom of corporate financial statements, have been aware for some time of how deceptive these annual profit statements have become. The difficulty basically is that inflation plays havoc with the value of a company's buildings, equipment and inventory. A machine's dollar value may be no reflection of the amount that would have to be spent to replace it with a newer model.

Many companies compensate, to some degree, by using quick depreciation. By writing off their equipment more rapidly than they used to, they take steps to ensure that they do not get caught with obsolete machinery they are not prepared to replace. The technique is also useful for tax purposes.

"To anyone trying to understand, even superficially, the present economic situation, the first question that must be asked is how reliable is the financial information that investors and the general public receive," says an editorial in the latest issue of CA Magazine, the professional publication of the Canadian Institute of Chartered Accountants.

"Whether these (1978) profits are illusory or not we don't seem to know — or care. At least not enough to do anything about it."

For at least the last five years, chartered accountants have been telling each other at their annual conferences and professional meetings that accountants must devise new ways of reporting financial information which will accurately portray profit levels.

This is a massive undertaking. It means finding a way of stating both the assets and liabilities of an organization in current dollar figures, which will give investors, shareholders and managers an accurate picture of what a company is worth. Accountants' jargon for the new system is current value accounting (CVA).

Two years ago, in the June issue of CA Magazine, Michael Alexander, who was then a senior accountant at a private firm but has since become director of research for the United States Financial Accounting Standards Board, wrote the following prophetic words:

"Our conventional financial reports provide little indication of the massive capital erosion and the overstatement of business profits between 1972 and 1976.

"The dramatic increases in reported earnings over those four years may have inadvertently deluded the public, government and business into believing that we were better off than we really were."

According to the institute, four countries now have government-imposed mandatory requirements that inflation be taken into account in financial reporting. These are the U.S., France, Argentina and Brazil.

Israeli Workers Strike Over Food Price Hikes

TEL AVIV (Reuter) — One million workers, almost one-third of Israel's population, went on strike today to protest against food-price increases.

The Histadrut trade union federation called for the four-hour stoppage to show its opposition to the increases, which followed drastic reductions in government subsidies of essential commodities.

Railways were halted, factories shut down, and hospitals and medical services operated on an emergency-only basis.

The Israeli government's subsidy-cutting move Sunday was expected to raise the prices of eggs, bread, cooking oil and dairy products by about 30 per cent. Economists predicted the increases would raise the overall consumer price index by 1.7 per cent.

The consumer index rose 48.1 per cent in 1978 and jumped 5.1 per cent in January. It posted a 2.4 per cent rise in February but that did not reflect the month's 40-per-cent increase for petroleum products.

Treaty over Hurdle

Carter, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Begin are to put their signatures to the treaty.

Begin and an Israeli delegation are to leave for Washington Friday.

Sadat said Friday he thought the document should be signed only in Washington since Carter brought about conclusion of the treaty during his Middle East mission last week. Sadat called it "his show."

Palestine Liberation Organization leader Yasser Arafat said in an interview broadcast Sunday night that Carter betrayed the Palestinian people in the latest Egyptian-Israeli peace moves in order to acquire Jewish votes.

Arafat also said he would call for an oil embargo against Egypt and the U.S., condemning the latter as "neo-colonial."

The growing impression that the U.S. would use military force to protect Saudi Arabia's oil fields against outside threats was given fresh support Sunday by two of the leading figures in U.S. foreign-policy circles.

That message was underscored by Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and Sen. Frank Church (Democrat—Idaho), chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, in separate television interviews.

Although both qualified their statements carefully, they also made unmistakably clear that the U.S. stake in Saudi Arabian oil supplies is so important it could justify a reversal of America's post-Vietnam reluctance to become involved in military operations abroad.

Israeli Energy Minister Yitzhak Modai said Sunday Israel will keep working the oil fields in the Gulf of Suez for the full nine months of the planned withdrawal from the Sinai despite Egyptian wishes.

"The Egyptians would love to have the oil fields within the next two months," Modai told the national radio. "But I don't think they're going to get it."

And inside, could this be the bunker to shelter our leaders in a nuclear attack?

Nanaimo's Nuclear Shelter Lies in Waiting

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

The "Diefenbunker" — the place where our leaders will go in the event of a nuclear holocaust — is ready and waiting, but don't ask for a specific location.

All we're going to tell you is that it's around Nanaimo.

The whole thing's supposed to be a big secret, so big that most of the government leaders don't even know where it is.

The bunker was built in the early 1960s as part of a multi-million dollar national defence program to ensure continuity of government following a nuclear attack.

The program was started by former prime minister John Diefenbaker, hence the name Diefenbunker.

John Blake, the man in B.C. who knows all about the bunker, keeps a pretty zipped lip about it all.

The 65-year-old director of the federal government's emergency planning office in B.C. will only admit it's buried in a large grassy field surrounded by a 12-foot high chain-link fence and no trespassing signs.

Blake is extremely terse about who would be invited to take refuge in B.C.'s shelter of last resort.

He says there is space reserved for only some members of the provincial cabinet.

He won't reveal who is excluded. Senior officials in such vital federal and provincial departments as health and welfare, public works, and communications are guaranteed a place.

And get this — there's a small CBC studio with provision to handle a few members of the press.

Turns out that each province has its own main bunker plus a number of satellite stations.

In B.C. there are four satellites or support centres at Prince Rupert, Prince George, Kamloops and Nelson.

Two more are planned, at Duncan and Sardis.

The feds have one of their own too, a super-bunker at Carp, Ont., 25 miles west of Ottawa.

It's rumored to be about 90 feet underground, on three levels, capped with 20 feet of concrete and another 20 feet of fill, and able to accommodate 400 people with enough food and water to last a month.

Such "facts," however, have never been confirmed.

Blake also refuses to specify the sites of the satellite stations other than to say they are in basements of federal government-owned buildings in each of the cities.

Neither will he say how big the Nanaimo centre is. And as to how many persons it will accommodate, he will only venture "it's in the hundreds."

He says there are beds, offices, and enough food and water for 14 days, the period of time, scientists feel, it takes radioactive materials to decay to the point where it's safe for a person to venture outside.

Blake says in the early 1960s when the scare of nuclear war seemed very real, the people involved knew where to go.

Former Premier W.A.C. Bennett toured the facility as did some members of his cabinet.

But Bennett's son Bill, the current premier, hasn't had the same opportunity.

Blake concedes all Bennett probably knows is the bunker's approximate location.

But this week in a casual conversation with a person familiar with the Nanaimo area, a Times reporter asked if he knew where the Diefenbunker is.

"What's a Diefenbunker?" came the reply. "You don't mean the Provincial Watch Centre on that military property off Harewood, do you? Everyone knows that."

Remember, he said it, we didn't.

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

Dentists usually appreciate the Girl Friday in their office more than doctors, says a woman who helps train the members of the Medical Office Assistants of Victoria.

Mrs. Kath Watson, who at one time was president of the MOA, is still active in the field although she no longer works in a medical office.

Her main thrust these days is making sure local doctors have a ready supply of well-trained medical office assistants.

She teaches a 20-week MOA night course at Camosun College, helped by her daughter, Mrs. Susan Wadsworth, who is a registered nurse.

This year they had the largest class ever — 40 — 33 of which will be writing examinations shortly. If they pass they will be awarded MOA certificates.

This is where the rub comes in. Dental assistant certificates are recognized by the dental profession and the provincial education department while MOA certificates are not.

"Dental assistants receive much more co-operation from the dentists but they had to fight, it wasn't easy," Mrs. Watson says.

One breakthrough, however, has been that the B.C. Medical Association is now printing and sending out to its members a letter which outlines the education work carried out by the 13 chapters of the Medical Office Assistants Association of B.C.

Mrs. Watson took over her teaching assignment from the late Mrs. Carla Czarmechi, who initiated the MOA course.

It covers a variety of subjects, ranging from how to fill out death cerificates and other forms, to drug handling and common medical office procedures like pap smears and urinalysis.

While many of the students are newcomers to the business world who see working in a doctor's office as an attactive way to earn a living, Mrs. Watson says there is always a certain number of registered nurses who see working in a doctor's office as a better alternative to a hospital shift system.

The average age of students is 30, she says.

"Several doctors' wives, usually one or two a year, have taken a course," she says. "In an emergency they can get a baby-sitter and help out at their husband's office."

She says one of the benefits to patients from MOA training is the ability of medical office assistants to handle emergencies in a reassuring, calm manner.

This is the ninth year Mrs. Watson has taught at Camosun College and she estimates that 450 trained medical office assistants have graduated in that time.

Some will attend the provincial association's eighth annual conference at the Richmond Inn in Richmond May 11 and 12.

Crime Takes A Holiday

First the good news.

Crime took a bit of a holiday in the Greater Victoria region over the weekend.

Now the bad news — like the good weather we've been having lately, it's not going to last.

But police from Sooke to Sidney say it's nice anyway.

There were no major traffic accidents or crimes reported in any of the area muncipalities, for either Saturday or Sunday. Weekends are usually busy times for local law enforcement agencies.

"Not a thing to report," said one police spokesman. "All we had was sunshine."

Summer Job Plan For Area Students Blocked by CUPE

By LORRAINE LOCHERTY
Times Staff

The Canadian Union of Public Employees has refused for the second consecutive year to approve a provincially-funded project that would have created 40 summer student jobs in Greater Victoria School District.

The school board will probably have to abandon its plan to apply for a labor ministry grant under the Youth Employment Program, according to a memo to trustees from secretary-treasurer Carl Warner.

The board needs permission from CUPE locals 383 and 947 before it can approve the summer work program.

District administration was recommending the board try for a grant of $42,450, to hire nine university and 34 high school students between May and August.

Helen Bell, president of CUPE local 947, said today union executive met last week with school board officials and decided the program is against union policy because it doesn't pay union wages.

The lowest union rate is $5.13 an hour. Under the Youth Employment Program, the ministry of labor pays maximum hourly wages of $3 for high school and $3.20 for university students.

Bell said the decision was not a personal attack on local school board policy, but a stand taken by the national and B.C. organizations to protest layoffs and cutbacks this year.

"It's a nation-wide stand the executive has taken."

A proposed summer job creation project last year was cancelled for the same reason.

All employers in B.C. are eligible to apply for funds under the program, but if they want to pay wages exceeding the $3.20 maximum, they must do so out of their own pockets.

According to program co-ordinator Joseph Calado, the project is meant to help studends accumulate work experience and job references during the summer that will aid them find full-time employment after they leave school.

The proposed summer jobs ranged from a survey of buildings and grounds by high school students to a job for one university student assessing physical education equipment and supplies for repairs.

One university and two high school students would have been employed to study the high school dropout situation in the district.

Another high school and university student combination would have been hired to research case studies of students with learning disabilities.

'Remember, Folks, Word's Alooo-HA!'

THE BOEING 747, AN aircraft which I had believed to be only less stable than the Rock of Ages, bucked, sunfished and jittered. The No Smoking light glowed. So did the Fasten Your Seat Belts. What the pilot had comfortingly described to us as "a little turbulence" on the Hawaii approaches impressed me as a full-fledged storm.

Lights swam into view far below. After hours of traversing the trackless ocean, we had made our landfall. In a matter of minutes, I devoutly hoped, we'd be down in Honolulu.

The 747's landing gear caressed the runway. A ripple of applause ran through the plane — first time I'd heard that in any flight — for the pilot who had brought us safe in without so much as a bump. Then we were into the fuss and bustle of disembarking in the Sunshine Isles we'd dreamed of through the wet and lowering days of a Vancouver Island February.

I peered out of the plane to the field.

"Oh boy," I said to my wife. "Look at that."

Rain streaked our windows. Raindrops pelted the blacktop so enthusiastically that they bounced a foot in air.

The Big Island of Hawaii was experiencing floods. The Island of Oahu on which we'd landed had been warned that its turn might be next. The Islands in total were suffering through their wettest winter sine 1904.

I turned up my trench-coat collar, jammed my wool watch-cap over my ears, and trudged into the airport.

Nobody seemed to mind the rain. Most of the men seeing people off or waiting for new arrivals wore slacks or shorts, white shoes and brightly-patterned aloha shirts. Many of the women were in long, flowered muu-muus.

A dark and pretty young muu-muu wearer stepped out of the crowd with a welcoming smile. She peeled a lei made of blossoms from that bunch that dangled from her arm, and reached to noose my neck with it. At the same time, her lips puckered to bestow a kiss.

"Wrong tour!" the dark young man beside her hissed in her ear.

The lips unpuckered. The lei was snatched back so briskly the blooms almost crackled.

But before I could register dismay, another pair of greeters descended on us, and the welcome promised in our tour prospectus was delivered. We were kissed. Leis were hung around our necks while hands on our shoulders dexterously spun us to blink into the eye of a camera.

We had been consigned to the hopper of Hawaii's smooth-functioning tourist processing machine, which handles 26,000 new arrivals each day in Waikiki alone.

Our tour guide, a striking Hawaiian girl in an orange muu-muu, shepherded us into the bus that would deal us out to our various hotels. While we rolled along streets in which the breath of flowers competed with the exhaust fumes of innumerable cars, we were taught the correct pronunciation of Hawaii's key word.

This is "Aloha", which means hello, goodbye, welcome, and also love.

Our driver got in on the act.

"Now remember, folks," he told us, "it's Alo-HA! You string it out, see? And you come down heavy on the last syllable."

Chorusing Alo-Ha! we rambled on our way. Our driver attempted a shortcut. His bus became wedged crossways on a dog-leg corner. He backed and filled. Traffic jams built up fore and aft of us.

We were then treated to a display of the happy-go-lucky Hawaiian temperament which was a revelation to mainland North Americans.

People got out of cars. They undertook to direct. From hotels and houses, other people boiled out on to their porches, or lanais. They too called directions and reassurances to the driver. It was good-natured bedlam, unmarked by so much as a word of impatience or anger. No car horns tooted. Drivers obligingly backed their vehicles on to the sidewalks to give the bulky bus a clearance.

Well-schooled, the bus passengers gave the crowd an Alo-HA! as we cleared the corner.

That episode set the tone for our stay in the islands. Invariably, wherever our wanderings took us, we found the native Hawaiians to be good-humored, courteous and obliging to a fault. And beyond any other people we have met, they seemed possessed of a wonderful capacity for the enjoyment of life.

Next morning, I woke to bright sunshine. Win was up before me. She was taking the air on our 10th-floor hotel lanai, a concrete eyebrow that jutted from the building.

"You'd better put on a jacket," I called to her. "You'll get cold, standing there."

Win gave me an indulgent smile. "Come on and try it," she invited.

I padded out to the porch. We had passed from our raw northern clime to full summer . . . to warm air that lay like silk upon the skin.

On the street below, a couple of brown-tanned fellows strolled shirtless in the direction of the beach. That same street was fringed picturesquely with palm trees. Clustered amid the top tufts of those palms were sure-enough coconuts.

Fleetingly, I wondered whether it was still snowing at Campbell River.

Couple Leaves Gallery Antique Porcelains

The Art Gallery of Greater Victoria has received a group of 18th century porcelains valued at about $100,000 from the estate of an elderly Oak Bay couple.

The bequest of the late Joseph and Ann Pearson, of 1256 Beach Drive, consists of 240 items including 100 pieces of Worcester ware that are among the finest ever assembled in Canada, gallery director Roger Boulet said today.

Pearson was a retired realtor and his wife was an internationally known antique dealer and collector, who for about 30 years ran an antique store known as The Old House at 1038 Fort Street.

He died March 2, aged 89; she died nine days later, aged 80.

Fifteen years ago, when they announced that the porcelains would be left in their will to the Art Gallery, Mrs. Pearson said: "We wanted to leave the collection to someone who would appreciate it."

Boulet said the porcelains all date from about 1745 to 1775 and besides Worcester they include Chelsea, Bow, Langton Hall and Caughley pieces.

"The Worcester is the prize, the landmark," he said. "It will make the Art Gallery's collection of poce-lain the finest in Canada, if not on the continent."

The gallery took delivery of the porcelains on Friday but will not display them until after the will is probated, possibly in early summer.

Auctioneer Frank Kilshaw said the auction for the balance of the Pearsons' estate may be the largest single estate auction ever held in Western Canada.

The couple's home was a treasury of antiques all dated prior to 1820, he said.

"Everything they had they used and lived with," said Kilshaw, who described Mrs. Pearson as a "brilliant" collector with an international reputation.

Fish on Hot Seat, But Slate 'Clean'

The Darren Fish rink of Edmonton may not be next year's Canadian representative at the world junior curling championship even if the foursome wins its second straight Canadian title this week in Victoria, Canadian Curling Association (CCA) officials say.

Fish was eliminated in the semifinals of last week's world junior championship in Moose Jaw but is touted as a favorite to retain the Canadian title he won in 1978 at this year's Canadian junior which opened at Victoria Curling Club today.

Fish is embroiled in a feud with the CCA over its handling of an incident last December which resulted in the removal, for poor conduct, of Barry Barker as Fish's lead in the world championship.

Barker admitted to breaking down a door at a hotel while the rink was in Moose Jaw for an exhibition series.

Bob Picken of Winnipeg, CCA representative to the International Curling Federation (ICF), said Barker's expulsion was meant to serve as an example to other members of the rink. The team had been cited for bad behavior on and off the ice since last year's Canadian junior championship in Charlottetown.

Barker's suspension ended after the world championship and he will be back on the ice in Victoria.

Picken said it is possible the CCA might decide to select another team to represent Canada at the 1980 world junior championship in Kitchener, Ont.

"If they (Fish's rink) win in Victoria, they (the CCA's committee on junior curling) will have to decide whether they want to repeat the invitation," said Picken.

Picken, who has been succeeded by CCA president Cliff Thompson of Kapuskasing, Ont., as head of Canada's delegation to the ICF, said he would prefer the CCA did not select Fish as the world representative and risk repeating this year's embarrassments: "Who needs it?"

Cy Walter of Assiniboia, Sask., CCA third vice-president, said the association amended its constitution at meetings during the Canadian men's championship in Ottawa two weeks ago, allowing the junior committee to send an alternate team to the world championship.

"Before that, it was cut and dried that the junior champion would represent Canada," he said.

Walter said the move came in part from the furore over the Fish rink's conduct.

However, Walter said the suitability of the Fish rink would be judged on its behavior here and after, not on previous incidents.

"That's behind them and us," he said. "The slate is clean."

Fish acknowledged that his rink, especially Barker, will be under close observation.

"He won't be able to sneeze the wrong way and they'll throw him off," said Fish of Barker.

Both Picken and Walter said they were happy with the rink's behavior at the world championship.

Meanwhile, the Don Barcome rink of United States captured the world junior title by defeating Andrew McQuistin of Scotland 6-4 in the championship game at Moose Jaw, Saturday after downing Sjur Loen of Norway in Friday's semi-final.

Fish, who lost to Scotland in the semi-final, beat Norway 9-4 to give Canada the bronze medal.

It was Barcome's third attempt at a world title. He missed the playoffs in 1976 and after finishing on top of the round-robin in 1977 lost to Bill Jenkins of Charlottetown in the semifinals.

The U.S. victory broke Canada's three-year domination of the title, won by Jenkins in 1977 and Paul Gowsell of Calgary in 1975 and 1978. It was the first year that Canada did not make he final, which have been Canadian-Swedish affairs in the previous four championships in the five-year-old event.

Bond of Mutual Respect Key to B.C. Rink Success

By BILL WALKER,
Times Staff

There's a strong feeling of mutual respect between skip and coach of the B.C. rink in the Canadian junior men's curling championship which opened this afternoon at Victoria Curling Club.

Stacey Coomber of Powell River, skip of the B.C. rink, says any success his rink has achieved has to be attributed to coach Bob Jones.

Jones, on the other hand, says one reason the Coomber rink has played so well in competition that it is a tight-knit group that gets along very well together.

Jones, a schoolteacher and an ex-Victorian, runs the junior development program at Powell River. "He started it two years ago," said Coomber. "There are about 80 members in the mixed group, and Jones has full control.

"I would say it was through his efforts in junior curling that helped get us to the Canadian final. He has done a great job for junior curling."

It is the second year the B.C. rink of Coomber, Dan Carriere, Don McPhee and Mike Cameron has been together.

Last year, they lost to Victoria's John McGowan in the Island final. This year they finished second in men's league play, second in the B.C. high school final and won their berth in the Canadian by being undefeated in the playoffs. Coomber himself also skipped a rink to victories in the Powell River junior mixed and the Campbell River junior mixed.

Coomber, who plays a hitting game, found the Victoria Club ice "fast" in a trial run on Sunday. "It appears much faster than our ice," he said, "but I think we can adjust."

Jones explained the Powell River ice doesn't really speed up until the third or fourth ends which has not been the case lately at Victoria Club where the ice has been described as extremely keen.

"I think they will do well," Jones added. "They are a dedicated group and a credit to the game."

Draw was made this morning for the 12 teams in the round-robin competition which concludes with playoffs on Saturday.

Winning rink may be invited to represent Canada in next year's world junior championship in Kitchener-Waterloo. The key word is "may".

No longer does the winning rink automatically qualify for the world as was the case in the past. Behaviour is considered as well as talent and Canadian Curling Association rule changes now allow the junior committee to send an alternate team to the world. (See other story).

Opening ceremonies and first draw were held this afternoon. Second draw will take place tonight at 8 p.m. with three draws Tuesday.

Martin Captures Third To Remain Unbeaten

VERNON (CP) — Victoria's Flora Martin moved into sole possession of first place at the Canadian senior women's curling championships with a 9-7 extra-end victory Sunday night over Fern Seel of Moose Jaw, Sask.

The victory left Martin with the only undefeated rink in the event with a 3-0 record. Seel is tied in second-place with three other rinks with two wins and one loss.

Despite the win in a match-up of the bonspiel's only undefeated rinks, Martin complained that she had trouble with the ice.

"We're fighting the ice," she said. "We're still not sure of our weight."

Martin, who won the national title in 1974 and 1976, needed two in the 10th end to tie the game, then stole two in the 11th. In the extra end with Martin lying two, Seel was successful on her first takeout shot but was wide with her second rock.

In other third-round games, Beverly Reber of Whitehorse defeated Jean Beardsley of Ottawa 9-7, Dorothy McKenzie downed Carmel McGrory of St. John's 8-5, Gwen Gibson of Quebec City thumped Doreen Blair of Fredericton 11-6, and Jennie Boomhower of Charlottetown beat Dorothy Robeson of Truro, N.S. 9-7.

In other second-round games, Seel beat Beardsley 9-2, Blair downed McKenzie 10-7, Boomhower edged Gibson 7-5, and Crawford trounced Reber 14-6.

Sparkes Wins Two

Times News Services

The Canadian rink from North Vancouver, skipped by Lindsay Sparkes, continued to show its power in the women's world invitational curling championship at Perth, Scotland, today, defeating West Germany 12-2.

This gave the Canadians a 2-0 record after three rounds in the tournament, including an 11-3 triumph over France Sunday night.

Sparkes, who said her rink was prepared for the tricky and swingy ice in the third-round match against Susi Kiesel, got off to a quick lead by stealing three points in the first end.

The Canadians added four points in the third then stole a total of five points in the next four ends to clinch the victory.

The United States rink, skipped by Nancy Langley of Seattle, Wash., leads with a 3-0 record. At 2-0 are Canada and Brigitta Torn of Sweden.

In other third-round games, the U.S. beat England 8-6, Sweden defeated Scotland 8-5, France surprised Switzerland 10-5 and Denmark downed Norway 9-5. Italy had the bye.

At Prince George, Ontario, skipped by Bob Widdis of Bramalea, Ont., one of three returning skips, saw a 4-0 lead evaporate Sunday but came back to down Andre Turgeon's Quebec rink 8-5 in the opening round of the Canadian mixed curling championship.

Ivan Carlisle of Port Alberni was defeated 5-3 by Jim Burden of Grand Falls, Nfld.

Brian Mackin of Fredericton and Roy Lund of Dryden, Ont., the Northern Ontario representative, were other returning skips who won. Mackin beat Charlottetown's Roger Goss 8-6 while Lund downed Saskatchewan's Ken May 8-6.

In other first-round matches, Don Ross of Yellowknife defeated Lowell Goulden of Dartmouth, N.S. 5-4 in an extra end, Brian White of Swan River, Man. scored a 6-3 win over Lyle Davis of Lethbridge, Alta.

At Kenora, Ont., Alberta defeated Saskatchewan 5-4 Saturday to win the Elks club national curling championship.

At Edmonton, Southern Ontario, skipped by Bob Brueker, edged Saskatchewan 9-8 to win the Canadian police curling championship with a record of 10 wins and one loss.

Dave Wilson's B.C. rink finished with a 5-6 record.

Can You Believe Flyers Play Without a Penalty?

By The Canadian Press

The Broad Street Pacifists?

It's doubtful the name will catch on, especially since Philadelphia Flyers remain the National Hockey League's most penalized team.

But in posting a 5-3 victory Sunday night in Philadelphia over St. Louis Blues, the Flyers adopted a role of pacifism and, in the process, set a team record.

For the first time in their 12-year history, the Broad Street Bullies — as they were known while winning successive Stanley Cups in 1973-74 and 1974-75 — did not get tagged with a single penalty.

And Blues coach Barclay Plager said it should not have happened Sunday.

"Philadelphia played a close-checking game and I felt they should have been called for at least one penalty during the game," he said. "Particularly when Rick MacLeish tripped Wayne Babych in the last seconds of the game.

"I thought we played well enough to at least get one point out of the game," Plager added.

Referee Dave Newell was hardly tough on the Blues either, calling them for only one infraction.

It was a different story in the City of Brotherly Love a week ago, when the Flyers and Los Angeles Kings combined to set 10 NHL penalty records.

Elsewhere Sunday, Pittsburgh Penguins downed New York Rangers 5-1, New York Islanders beat Minnesota North Stars 5-3, Montreal Canadiens bested Colorado Rockies 3-1, Detroit Red Wings beat Chicago Black Hawks 4-2, Washington Capitals tied Buffalo Sabres 3-3 and Vancouver Canucks beat Atlanta Flames 2-1.

A pair of goals by centre Blake Dunlop carried the Flyers to Sunday's win. Dunlop now has five goals in his last three games.

The Canuck victory, combined with the St. Louis loss, wrapped up second place in the Smythe Division for Vancouver.

Goals by Ron Sedlbauer and Don Lever carried Vancouver past Atlanta. Defenceman Bob Murdoch ruined Gary Bromley's shutout bid 25 seconds into the third period.

Defenceman Ron Stackhouse scored three goals, all on power plays, for the first time in his career to carry the Penguins past the Rangers and give Pittsburgh a two-point edge on third-place Los Angeles in the Norris Division.

Bryan Trottier, the NHL points leader with 118 on 44 goals and 74 assists, scored New York's first goal and set up the game-winner by John Tonelli as the Islanders — unbeaten in their last seven games — retained their two-point lead over the Canadiens in the over-all points race.

Bob Gainey scored twice and Steve Shutt once as Montreal beat Colorado to snap a four-game winless streak. The victory was only the third in the last 10 games for the Canadiens, who clinched the Norris Division title 10 days ago.

Detroit, which has virtually no playoff hopes this season, rallied from a two-goal deficit and extended its unbeaten streak to five games by beating Chicago. The Black Hawks, meanwhile, have lost their last five — despite a trade with Atlanta last Tuesday which brought them five players.

Scrappy Washington came from behind three times, the last time on Gord Lane's goal with 7:21 remaining, to tie Buffalo.

Cougars Zero In On Second Spot

By ERNIE FEDORUK
Times Staff

Because of injuries, an abundance of bodies has been something of a luxury for coach Jack Shupe in his handling of the Victoria Cougars during this Western Hockey League season.

There is talent to spare now, but a reduction of playing ranks still seems to suit the Cougars.

The Cougars moved a step closer towards clinching second place in the Western Division with Saturday's important 5-3 victory over New Westminster Bruins and the reasons were threefold.

Firstly, there was Steve Amiss. The redheaded netminder, Victoria's allowable overage performer, was the glue on defence. His strong work kept the team in contention for the first half of the game and until the Cougars got their act together.

Secondly, there was Bob Jansch. A 42-goal scorer in his rookie campaign last year, the winger from Chemainus has been a scoring disappointment until recent weeks. He's been showing signs of breaking out and the emergence continued with a three-goal performance Saturday that boosted his season's total to 22 goals.

Thirdly, and perhaps not as obvious, was Victoria's reaction to Shupe's usage of three lines as opposed to four.

On Saturday, three worked better than four.

Only defenceman Tony Feltrin, expected to be out of action for at least three more weeks, remains on the sidelines through injury. Victoria's roster has been expanded with the recall of farmhand affiliates Brad Yachimec, Brent Denat, Len Dawes and Ryan McAdams.

That has given Shupe an opportunity to play four lines and juggle his defence combinations liberally.

But the forwards, admits Shupe, sometimes go better with the three-line system.

At least they did Saturday.

Starting out with four, the Cougars fell behind 2-0 in the first four minutes of play. For another 30 minutes, it was a struggle to stay close. They did because of Amiss.

Then Shupe threw the work-load on three lines. The telling switch was moving Brad Palmer from centre on the fourth line to a wing position alongside Gary Lupul and George Fritz. The line applied the most consistent pressure on New Westminster goaltender Tom Semenchuk and Palmer capped the performance with his 17th goal of the year.

The other two lines, getting into the fray more often, also responded.

Scoring-wise, the door opened when New Westminster's Boris Fistric took roughing minor. Jansch connected on a power-play goal to make it 2-1 and Greg Adams, finishing off a beautiful play with centre Barry Pederson, tied it 69 seconds later.

Jansch, with a pair, and Palmer capped Victoria's comeback with third-period goals.

Neil Meadmore, with two, and former Cougar Rod Clavette scored for the Bruins, who dropped five points behind Victoria in their down-to-the-wire argument for second place.

The Bruins also bowed 6-1 to the Winter Hawks in Portland on Sunday and that means Cougars need only one more victory from their three remaining games to clinch second. Cougars entertain Seattle Breakers at Memorial Arena on Tuesday, visit Portland on Friday and wind up the regular season Saturday against Medicine Hat Tigers.

The Clippers Are Serious

By Associated Press

San Diego Clippers haven't even clinched a National Basketball Association playoff berth, but they're thinking bigger and better things.

"This team can go all the way," said Lloyd Free, who scored 15 of his game-high 31 points in the fourth period Sunday as the Clippers beat New Jersey Nets 110-98. "I still don't think we're being taken seriously by everyone, but we're serious."

The win was the fifth in a row for the Clippers, who have won 13 of their last 14 games and 11 straight at home. The Nets have dropped five in a row and nine of 11.

The Clippers, who are locked in a battle with Denver Nuggets and Portland Trail Blazers for the final two playoff berths in the Western Conference, led all the way, moving out to a 34-17 lead after one quarter when the Nets made only eight of 29 shots.

Elsewhere Sunday, Milwaukee Bucks whipped San Antonio Spurs 147-127, Washington Bullets dumped Cleveland Cavaliers 126-112, Kansas City Kings downed Chicago Bulls 114-103, New Orleans Jazz shaded Phoenix Suns 121-117, Los Angeles Lakers trimmed Boston Celtics 122-111 and Philadelphia '76ers trounced New York Knicks 106-90.

On Saturday, Detroit Pistons beat Indiana Pacers 105-98, Washington edged Cleveland 117-114, New York shaded Philadelphia 103-101, Seattle SuperSonics blasted Chicago 106-88, Houston Rockets outlasted Phoenix 134-122, Denver downed Atlanta 118-111, San Diego beat Golden State 107-102 and Portland whipped New Jersey 124-113.

"This team started off playing better on the road than at home," Free said. "Then, all of a sudden we got tough at home and we're still tough. The reason we're so tough at home is we've established our offence early in the game and set the pace from then on."

New Jersey pulled to within three points late in the third quarter, but rookie Freeman Williams led an 11-4 San Diego surge.

Bobby Dandridge and Elvin Hayes scored 24 points apiece and Wes Unseld added 20 as Washington raised its home record to 27-7. Both coaches, Dick Motta of Washington and Bill Fitch of Cleveland, were ejected in the opening period.

Brousson Victorious

Michelle Brousson of the Royal Oak Gym Club came up with the best local performance during the British Columbia modern rhythmic gymnastics championships Saturday at UVic's McKinnon Gym.

Brousson won the intermediate compulsory freehand competition.

Several other club members, under coach Monika Alde, placed well up in other categories.

Jenny White and Nadine Toronitz finished second and third, respectively, in the junior compulsory freehand competition and Barb Bishop placed third in the intermediate optional hoop.

Most of the silverware, however, was grabbed up by representatives of the Rhythmica Club from Vancouver.

Janet Campbell, who won the masters title and will represent Canada at the world championships at London, England, in July, will be joined by five clubmates on the B.C. team competing in the Canadian finals April 20-22 in Winnipeg.

Other members of the team are Lori Fung, who won the pre-masters title; Andrea Price, who captured the Level I crown; Lisa Braga, Linda Price and Sherri Clarke.

A total of 26 competitors from Vancouver Island and the Lower Mainland took part in the meet.

Ingemar Cracks Victory Record

STENMARK
. . . giant slalom sweep

FURANO, Japan (AP) — Ingemar Stenmark of Sweden made World Cup ski history today, completing a clean sweep of all 10 giant slalom races and breaking the record for most victories in a single season.

Stenmark won the season's final giant slalom by 1.56 seconds over Heini Hemmi of Switzerland with runs of one minute, 30.71 seconds and 1:27.88 on the 1,320-metre course for a total time of 2:58.59.

Heini Hemmi was second in 3:00.15 with runs of 1:31.07 and 1:29.08, while Jean Luc Fournier of Switzerland was third in 3:00.41 with runs of 1:31.10 and 1-29.31.

Stenmark won the season's final slalom race Saturday and ended up with 13 first-place finishes — 10 in giant slalom and three in slalom — breaking the record of 12 held by Jean-Claude Killy of France.

Peter Luescher of Switzerland, who already had clinched the men's World Cup championship, was seventh in today's giant slalom with a combined time of 3:02.13.

Stenmark did not gain any more World Cup points for his victory and, in fact, dropped to fifth place in the standings with 150 points. Stenmark, who does not enter downhill races, already had earned the maximum points he could gain in slalom and giant slalom. One victory usually is worth 25 points.

After the race, Luescher remained at 186, while second-place Leonhard Stock of Austria raised his total to 163 points by finishing ninth in the giant slalom in 3:02.62.

Piero Gros of Italy moved into fourth place by placing sixth in the race with a combined time of 3:01.91 on runs of 1:32.71 and 1:29.20.

Peter Monod of Banff, Alta., finished 32nd with a combined time of 3:07.94 on runs of 1:34.51 and 1:33.43, while downhill specialist Ken Read of Calgary, was another 88-100ths of a second back with runs of 1:35.37 and 1:33.45.

Phil Mahre of White Pass, Wash., remained in third place with 155 points. Mahre broke a leg in a March 4 giant slalom and missed the final six races.

Earlier in the day, Annemarie Moser-Proell of Austria also made skiing history, capturing an unprecedented sixth World Cup title by overtaking defending champion Hanni Wenzel of Liechtenstein to finish second in the final race of the season.

Wenzel was in a good position to finish second herself in the giant slalom race, but she slipped and lost valuable time about two thirds of the way down the second run. Wenzel wound up fifth.

Marie-Theres Nadig of Switzerland won the race by 5½ seconds, clocking the fastest times in both runs. Her first run was 1:20.36 and her second was timed in 1:25.67 for a total of 2:46.03.

Moser-Proell finished in 2:51.23 with runs of 1:23.61 and 1:27.62, inreasing her over-all World Cup points total to 243.

Wenzel had an aggregate time of 2:51.86 on runs of 1:23.35 and 1:28.51, but she did not gain any points because of a complex scoring system that allows only the best three finishes in each discipline to be counted toward the over-all title. She ended the season with 240 points.

Irene Epple of West Germany was third in 2:51.42 on runs of 1:23.08 and 1:28.34, and 16-year-old Heidi Pruess of Lakeport, N.H., finished fourth in 2:51.85 with heats of 1:23.72 and 1:28.13.

On Sunday, Perrine Pelen of France edged Wenzel by one-hundredth of a second in a slalom event. Wenzel had the fastest second run of 43.90 seconds but fell just short of catching Pelen, whose second run of 44.11 seconds gave her a total of 1:30.05 to 1:30.06 for Wenzel.

Lakers Move to Semis In Jackson Cup Chase

A lone second division squad — Prospect Lake — managed to survive along with three first division clubs during Jackson Cup quarter-final action in the Vancouver Island Soccer League at the weekend.

Prospect Lake upset Nanaimo City 2-1 while Victoria West topped Metro Toyota of the second division 3-0 at Heywood Avenue Park and Gorge bounced Oak Bay 4-1 at Hampton Park on Sunday.

On Saturday, Victoria Athletics blanked Nanaimo United 2-0 at Royal Athletic Park.

Gord Kishkan drove a hard ground shot low into a corner at the 14-minute mark to open scoring for Prospect Lake and Mike Wallis counted what proved to be the winning goal six minutes later. Don Attig replied for Nanaimo City with about 15 minutes remaining.

Bob Duncan set the pace for Vic West with two goals. He opened scoring by banging in a rebound from a shot by Dan Henry and finished off in the second half after collecting a rebound from a shot by Tim Achtzener. Robbie Williams scored the other goal on a header off a corner kick by Garnet Moen to give West a 2-0 lead at half time.

Gorge cruised to victory by scoring three goals in as many minutes late in the first half.

Yoso Iruretagoyena scored on a header off a shot by Clayton Booth that hit the cross-bar at 40 minutes and then fired another tally a minute later. Goran Mehinagic counted at 42 minutes by heading in a cross from Mike Hardy to give Gorge a 3-0 lead at the break.

Howie Kirk finished off scoring for Gorge at 74 minutes and Ed Lowe took a pass from Danny Bolton to score avert a shutout for Oak Bay at 84 minutes.

Gord Manzini opened scoring for Athletics midway through the first half and Mark Robb added the insurance tally during the second half, bashing in a pass from Derek Paul.

The draw for the semi-finals of the Jackson Cup competition will be made at half time in the exhibition match between Island League All-Stars and Vancouver Whitecaps.

The semis will be played Mar. 31 and Apr. 7 at the same site.

Six Times to School, Mark Wins a Big One

MIAMI (AP) — Mark McCumber, a long-shot rookie who required six tries before he even won the right to compete on the Professional Golfers' Association tour, stroked home the six-foot bogey putt he needed on the final hole to preserve a round of par 72 and an upset one-stroke victory Sunday in the Doral Open golf tournament.

It was the fourth time in 10 tournaments this season that a first-timer had won — and none was more obscure than the 27-year-old McCumber.

The stocky, hard-hitting McCumber won his approved player's card in his sixth try at the PGA qualifying school last fall. In eight previous tries this season he'd failed to make the tournament field in two, missed the cut for the last two rounds in four others and earned money in two. He had to survive the Monday morning qualifying round to make it into the tournament field here.

McCumber, from Jacksonville, Fla., shrugged off those struggles, however, and won this one with a 279 total, nine shots under par on the 7,065-yard Blue Monster course at the Doral Country Club. The $45,000 he collected from the total purse of $250,000 was almost four times his total previous earnings on the tour.

But it didn't come easily.

He was locked in a three-way fight Sunday with Bill Rogers and Alan Tapie through 12 holes, then pulled away when Tapie took himself out of it with a double-bogey seven on the 12th and Rogers fell victim to a bogey-bogey string.

The high drama, however, came down to the long, water-guarded 18th, perhaps the toughest finishing hole in golf.

With a two-shot lead and playing in front of Rogers, McCumber got his tee shot far to the right, away from the lake. His next was behind the stands near a concession stand. He got a drop, but hit his third to the near fringe.

Now he was faced with the problem of getting down in two for a bogey. He ran his approach putt about six feet beyond the cup and had to make that one.

And he did, rapping it into the back of the cup for a bogey, the score he needed to win, and went leaping high into the air before falling into the happy embrace of his caddy.

Rogers still had a chance, however. He needed a birdie to tie, but missed the green with a wood-club second shot and then failed on a long putt through about 10 feet of rough.

Rogers also had a closing round of 72 and a 280 total. He won $27,000. Rod Curl came on to take third at 281 after a closing 68 in the mild, hazy weather.

Tapie, the third-round leader who played his back nine in a struggling 39, tied for fourth at 282 with Mike McCullough, Kermit Zarley and Gibby Gilbert. Tapie went to a 76. McCullough shot 67, Zarley 71 and Gilbert 68.

Carner Cautious On Closing Holes

SAN DIEGO (AP) — JoAnne Carner played it close to the vest late in the final round Sunday of a $150,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament at Rancho Bernardo Inn and Country Club, and it paid off in her 22nd career victory.

"I three-ironed it to death from 14 on in," Carner said after shooting a second straight 69 to earn a three-shot triumph and the $22,500 first prize. "I putted fairly conservatively, I had a lot of good lag putts."

Carner's three-shot margin of victory over Sandra Post and Pat Bradley was a bit misleading. The winner had a lead of just one stroke over Post before the latter double-bogeyed the 17th hole.

Carner hit three-irons off the tee on four of her final five holes as she finished her round with five pars.

"I made a last-minute adjustment in my putting stroke just before teeing off and it helped," Carner said, pointing to seven one-putt greens in her final round and a 35-putt birdie putt on the sixth hole.

Carner's final score in the 72-hole tournament over the 6,212-yard, par-72 Rancho Bernardo layout was 281 fashioned on rounds of 72, 71, 69 and 69. Post finished with a 71 and Bradley a 73 to give the pair 284 totals and $12,600 each in prize money.

Jocelyne Bourassa of Shawinigan, Que., shot a 74 in her final round for 303 and earned $367.50.

Playoff Win By Bembridge

NAIROBI (Reuter) — Maurice Bembridge won his third Kenya Open golf championship Sunday when Bernard Gallacher missed a three-foot putt in a sudden-death play off between the two British golfers.

They had tied on a four-round total of 271 after Gallacher had shot a six-under-par 65 Sunday to make up five strokes on Bembridge.

Drillers Join Caps On Exhibition List

Soccer fans on the southern end of Vancouver Island will have opportunities to watch two squads from the North American Soccer League in action during the next two weeks.

The exhibition list opens with Vancouver Island Soccer League All-Stars facing Vancouver Whitecaps at 7 p.m. Wednesday at Royal Athletic Park.

Then fans will have a chance to preview Edmonton Drillers, the latest entry in the NASL.

Drillers, who include Victoria-product Bruce Twamley in the lineup, face the All-Stars at 2 p.m. Sunday at Caledonia Park in Nanaimo and at 7 p.m. March 27 at Royal Athletic.

Formerly the Oakland Stompers, Drillers will train at Topaz Park during their visit to the Island.

Painful Victory

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Mike Krantz of the United States, suffering stomach pains, won the 15th Thailand Open golf championship Sunday in a playoff with Jaime Gonzales of Brazil, then collapsed.

Krantz, a genial six-footer playing his fourth Thai open, ended four days of play tied with Gonzales at 282, and won on the first extra hole.

Then Krantz collapsed from stomach pains and could not personally receive the King's Cup, awarded each year to the winner.

Krantz shot a 67 Sunday on the 6,871-yard, par-71 course for a 72-hole total of 282. Gonzales only managed a par 71 Sunday.

Kurt Cox of the U.S. shot a closing 69 for third place tie at 283 with Korean Hahn Chang San.

Lansdowne Triumphs

PORT ALBERNI — Lansdowne of Victoria completed and unbeaten march to the title Saturday by overpowering Port Alberni 65-40 in the championship game of the provincial bantam boys' basketball tournament.

Brian Kennish hit the hoop for 17 points and Paul Russell notched 14 for Lansdowne in the final contest of the four-team, double-loss event.

The Victoria team, coached by Jack Newnham, posted a 71-38 triumph over Terrace in the opening round and advanced to the championship game with a 66-57 conquest of Port Alberni.

Danny Godfrey of Lansdowne was selected as the tournament's outstanding player and was named to the all-star squad along with clubmates Jeff Loukes and Paul Russell. Completing the all-star team were Alberni aces Mike Perks and Van Wong.

Hoop Countdown for Who's New

By The Associated Press

Talk about longshots, take a look at the teams in the National Collegiate Athletic Association basketball semi-finals — Indiana State, Michigan State, DePaul and Penn.

Of the four, only Michigan State ever has gone this far — the Spartans finishing fourth in 1957. DePaul was among the final four teams in 1943, but at that time, only a total of eight teams were invited to regional games in the East and the West, with the regional champions meeting for the national title.

Of the four, only Michigan State was rated among the top 20 teams prior to the season, ranking seventh in The Associated Press poll. Indiana State was listed among the also-rans, and neither DePaul nor Penn got even a single vote among the 53 teams named by a national committee of sportswriters and broadcasters.

Of the four, only Indiana State was seeded first in its regional tournament, the unbeaten Sycamores being tapped to win the midwest regional. DePaul was ranked second in the west regional, Michigan State second in the mideast, and Penn ninth in the east regional.

Of the four team coaches — Bill Hodges of Indiana State, Jud Heathcote of Michigan State, 65-year-old Ray Meyer of DePaul and Bob Weinhauer of Penn — none has ever guided a team into the final four at any school.

This year's final four reached that plateau during the weekend.

On Saturday, top-ranked Indiana State, 32-0, won the midwest regional at Cincinnati by edging No. 5 Arkansas 73-71 on reserve Bob Heaton's field goal with two seconds remaining. No. 6 DePaul, 25-5, captured the west regional at Provo, Utah, by upsetting second-ranked UCLA 95-91 as Curtis Watkins and Gary Garland each scored 20 points.

On Sunday, third-ranked Michigan State, 24-6, took the mideast regional at Indianapolis, beating No. 4 Notre Dame 80-68 behind Greg Kelser's 34 points and 13 rebounds and Earvin Johnson's 19 points and 13 assists. And 14th-ranked Penn won the east regional at Greensboro, N.C., defeating No. 17 St. John's 64-62 on James Salters's two free throws with 23 seconds remaining.

In the national semi-finals this Saturday, Indiana State faces DePaul and Michigan State plays Penn, with the winners meeting for the title next Monday night.

Flyers Take Midget Title

VANCOUVER — Dan Lansdell and Cal Russell provided the scoring power Saturday as Fairburn Flyers of Victoria edged Nelson 48-45 to win the British Columbia midget boys' basketball crown.

Lansdell connected for 16 points and Russell added a dozen as Fairburn held off the determined Nelson squad. Also scoring for the Flyers were Rich Brown (eight), Alan Devlin (six), Dan Shea (four) and Ken Passmore (two).

Island Event Dominated By Oak Bay

DUNCAN — Oak Bay athletes dominated the Vancouver Island junior high school cross-country team championships here Saturday.

Oak Bay claimed three of the four titles with the girls' teams sweeping both the midget and junior events. Under the reverse scoring system, Oak Bay edged Lansdowne 26-27 in the midget division and the junior team topped Claremont 53-58.

Oak Bay's "A" and "B" teams finished 1-2 in the midget boys class while Central took the junior crown. Brentwood was runnerup in the junior class.

NO-GIMMICK CAR RENTALS

Our rates are a pleasant surprise!

At Tilden, it's our policy for every station to have its rates printed and displayed—because we don't want you to think that we charge "what the traffic will bear"!

Also, we think it's gimmicky to feature absurd "come-on" prices when the real cost ends up being the kind of surprise you don't need—once you've figured it out! What we feature is what you pay!

So next time you need wheels, get them with no gimmicks—from Tilden. And as we include 200 kilometres on the house per day at most of our stations, we think you'll find our rates an even more pleasant surprise!

CARDIFF (CP) — Wales retained the Five Nations Rugby Union championship Saturday with a decisive 27-3 victory over England at Cardiff Arms Park.

France took second place by defeating Scotland 21-17 in Paris.

The Welsh, winning their fourth title in five years, led 7-3 at half time and scored their remaining 20 points in the last 18 minutes with four tries, two of them converted. England's only points came on a penalty goal six minutes before the interval.

Roger Aguirre kicked a penalty goal from the half-way line with 13 minutes remaining.

Wales completed the round-robin competition with three victories and a loss. France had two wins, a loss and a tie and Ireland was third with a win, a loss and two ties. England had a 1-2-1 record and Scotland was last with two ties and two losses.

BOXING FANS SET FIRE TO RING

ROI ET, Thailand (AP) — Spectators set fire to the boxing ring Saturday night after they were told by the local promoter that the World Boxing Association junior featherweight championship fight between champion Ricardo Cardona of Colombia and Thai challenger Vichit Muangroi-Et had been cancelled.

Police said about 7,000 fans went on a rampage. Some spectators ripped down electric lighting in the outdoor stadium.

Before the fight was scheduled to begin, sports official Anuncha Vacharatangka told the crowd the fight had been cancelled, and announced he was resigning as promoter of boxing competitions in the area.

Police said Cardona decided he would not fight because he had not received the $80,000 guaranteed purse following the weigh-in Saturday morning.

Police officials said they arrested Anucha and charged him with cheating the public.

Rebels Capture Second Title

VANCOUVER — Burnaby South Rebels shut down Richmond Colts' top scorer and used a balanced offence Saturday to win its second British Columbia senior high school boys' basketball championship.

The Rebels, who last won the provincial title in 1953, stopped the Colts 65-47 in the final before 4,334 fans at the Pacific Coliseum.

Going into the 16-team, four-day tournament, Burnaby South had been ranked third provincially, while Richmond had been ranked eighth.

Ward Keith, a six-foot-one guard, and Greg Wirch, a six-foot-three forward, each scored 17 points for the Rebels, who led 28-23 at halftime and 43-33 after three quarters.

Brian Craig, another six-foot-one guard, held Richmond's Alan Tait to 17 points, the six-foot-three guard's lowest total in his four tournament games. Craig also was voted the tournament's most valuable player.

Gladstone Gladiators of Vancouver edged Parkland Panthers 76-73 to take third place. Parkland, voted the most sportsmanlike team in the tournament, finished sixth.

Ken Yonge, a six-foot-four forward, paced the Gladstone attack with 26 points. Forward Tony Marchese added 22 for the Gladiators, who led 38-34 at halftime.

Forward Greg Wiltjer, at six-foot-nine the tallest player in the tournament, scored 26 for Parkland.

The Joe Milligan-coached Panthers, appearing in the provincial finals for the first time, suffered a big jolt early in the second half when they lost starry Quinn Groenhyde.

Panthers' leading scorer during the regular season, Groenhyde fell heavily after connecting on a jump shot with about two minutes gone in the second half. He was carried from the floor on a stretcher and taken to hospital. X-rays revealed the injury to be a bad sprain and Groenhyde was back in the Coliseum in time to claim a trophy for his selection to the tournament's second all-star team.

Craig, Tait, Marchese, Wiltjere and Ken Klassen of Mennonite Educational Institute Eagles were the first team all-stars.

In addition to Groenhyde, the second team was made up of Joel Grigg of Burnaby South, Bill Nicol of Magee Lions, Doug Vicic of West Vancouver Highlanders and Pat West of Prince George's Duchess Park.

The Eagles were fourth, beating Magee 78-57 and Duchess Park finished fifth after stopping Caledonia of Terrace 79-63.

PARKLAND (73) — Dexter Williams 10, Quinn Groenhyde 10, Nick Ollis 4, Gordon Fox 7, Greg Wiltjer 26, Alan Benn 10, John Ibbotson 6.

GLADSTONE (76) — Pete Langford 8, Jeff Stanford 8, Tony Marchese 22, James Mah 8, Ken Yonge 26, Doug Chinn 4.

Oxford Equals Record

LONDON (Reuter) — Oxford won the 125th University Boat Race Saturday when its crew beat Cambridge by four lengths to equal the record of four consecutive victories.

A sluggish opening by Cambridge on a surprisingly calm Thames River allowed Oxford to build up a commanding lead of eight seconds just over a 1½ miles (2.4 km) into the race.

Oxford won the toss for the fifth straight year and took the more sheltered Surrey bank on a bright and breezy afternoon.

Cambridge's race hopes had suffered a shattering blow just before the start when stroke John Woodhouse withdrew from the race due to illness.

Despite a gallant effort by Cambridge toward the end of the 4.21-mile (6.78-km) course, Oxford held its lead and finished 12 seconds in front in a slowish time of 20 minutes 32 seco[illegible]

Junior Braves Tie Leafs 5-5

Saanich Braves of the South Vancouver Island Junior "B" Hockey League battled to a 5-5 deadlock with Esquimalt Maple Leafs of the South Island Big Six League in an exhibition game Saturday between the two league champions at Sooke Arena.

Tracy Patterson led Braves with two goals and Bill Jobson, a Saanich grad who also played for Victoria Cougars, counted twice for the Leafs.

Sentinel Captures Badminton Title

VANCOUVER (CP) — Sentinel of West Vancouver edged a combined Vancouver team of St. George's and Crofton House 6-5 Saturday to win the British Columbia high school badminton championship.

'One-Night Stand' Not the Best Method

LINDA FRATIANNE
. . . reigns again

VIENNA (CP) — A world championship based on more than one competition, rules to limit the number of entries and a further emphasis on the value of free skating are among changes being sought by Canada after a disappointing finish at the 1979 world figure skating championship.

A week of setbacks was capped off Saturday night when the championships ended with Janet Morrissey of Ottawa placing 19th in the women's event, won by 1977 champion Linda Fratianne of the United States.

Morrissey skated well in her free-skating final, showing determination by inserting a triple jump, which she ignored earlier, into the last 10 seconds of her program.

She placed 17th in the free skating but still slipped to 19th place overall, a victim of the large field of 31 entries which created confusion in the judging.

"There are too many skaters and it becomes very, very difficult to separate the skaters from sixth to 15th," said Charles Dover, president of the Canadian Figure Skating Association. "So, to some extent, there is an element of luck in the draw, the position you're skating.

"I'm certainly hoping the International Skating Union will be seriously attacking this problem."

A large part of Canada's problems here hinged on the compulsory figures and compulsory dances which account for 30 per cent of the total marks.

Canadians are usually weak in compulsories compared with the Europeans, and despite the fact the compulsories have been devalued in the last 10 years, it's still difficult for some of the best free skaters to move up once they earn a low placing in figures.

"This is always a controversial question," said Dover. "The world is still divided into two camps as to whether there should be figures in competition or whether there should be free skating only.

"Personally, I feel that the ultimate solution to some of the problems would be to resolve the world championships on more than one competition.

"I think the ISU types are just as disraught or upset as we are. They recognize that it's getting out of hand, that some of the controls have been lost. They recognize that figures still have too much weight. They recognize, which they never would a few years back, that a world championship shouldn't be decided on one performance on one night."

It was one performance on Saturday that won the women's title for Fratianne, who skated flawlessly in her free program to regain the crown from East German Anett Poetzsch.

Poetzsch, who had upset Fratianne last year, and Dagmar Lurz of West Germany were both ahead of the California skater going into the free-skating final.

But both of the German women had problems with some of their jumps and failed to match the 18-year-old American's performance.

Poetzsch wound up second, while Lurz dropped to fourth and Emi Watanabe collected the first-ever medal for Japan in a women's world championship by finishing third.

Fratianne's win gave the United States two of the four gold medals here.

Dianne Snaps Sue's Streak

BOSTON (AP) — Californian Dianne Fromholtz beat Sue Barker 6-2, 7-6 in the final round of a $150,000 women's tennis tournament Sunday, snapping a winning streak during which the unseeded Barker had toppled Chris Evert and Virginia Wade earlier in the tourney.

Fromholtz got off to a fast start and easily won the first set, breaking Barker's serve twice, in the fourth and eighth games. But she had to fight off a strong comeback by her English rival in the second set of the match between the pair of 22-year-olds.

As winner of the tournament, Fromholtz earned $30,000. Both finalists have qualified for the Avon championship in New York next week.

At Washington, D.C., Saturday, Roscoe Tanner, utilizing his powerful service, ended the three-year reign of Brian Gottfried 6-4, 6-4 to win the $125,000 Washington men's tournament.

The 27-year-old Tanner, the No. 1 seed, appeared to have little trouble in besting the second-seeded Gottfried, who suffered his first loss at Washington in the past three years.

Tanner, ranked No. 10 in the world, earned $24,000 for his victory.

With the victory, Tanner earned 125 Grand Prix points, giving him a total of 660 to keep him in second place behind No. 1 Jimmy Connors who has 785.

At Cleveland Sunday, Dick Stockton overpowered Alvaro Betancur 6-1, 6-2, 7-5 Sunday to give the United States a 5-0 sweep of the North American Zone Davis Cup finals against a completely outclassed Colombian team.

Earlier Sunday, John McEnroe defeated Colombia's No. 1 player, Ivan Molina 6-4, 6-3, 6-2.

The defending-champion U.S. team dominated the five-match series so completely that Colombia didn't win a single set in the three-day competition and broke service only once, in the sixth game of the final set.

Playing at Barcelona, Spain also complted a Davis Cup sweep Sunday, beating the Soviet Union 5-0 to advance into the next round of the European zone A competition.

In the two last singles matches, Antonio Munoz beat Ramiz Akhmerov and Fernando Luna defeated Vadim Borisov.

Spain will play Austria in Vienna in the next round June 15-17.

Included in other Davis Cup results were victories by Italy over Denmark, Romania over Belgium, Austria over Egypt and Switzerland over Yugoslavia.

Canto Loses Crown Despite Late Rally

PUSAM, Korea (AP) — Park Chan-hee of Korea built up a big lead, then fought off fatigue and Miguel Canto of Mexico, who was making his 15th title defence, to win the World Boxing Council flyweight championship on an unanimous 15-round decision Sunday night.

The 22-year-old Korean started aggressively and kept the defending champion on the defensive through the first few rounds, using quick combinations and utilizing his longer reach to pile up points.

Canto, 30, began rallying in the 11th round but it was too late.

Canton, who won the title in January, 1975, weighed 111 while Park scaled the class limit of 112.

Lower Island Clubs Ousted

Teams from the Lower Island Youth Soccer Association fared poorly at the weekend during playoffs leading to the British Columbia championships.

Victoria Gorge FC dropped a 2-1 decision to Delta Peace Arch Panthers in a second division quarter-final match Sunday.

On Saturday, Victoria Lansdowne Evening Optimist Patriots came out on the wrong end of a 4-3 score during a third-division tussle and North Delta United edged Victoria Gordon Head Coppen Jewellers 3-2 during overtime in a sixth-division struggle.

Paul Aitken scored the lone goal for Gorge; Ian McDougall (2) and Adam Keith connected for Patriots and Andrew Moody-Stewart and Warren Brown counted for Coppen Jewellers.

Only two other teams from Vancouver Island managed to advance.

Nanaimo Diplock Masonry downed Delta Tsawwassen Falcons 4-2 in a first-division match Sunday and Nanaimo Bel-Aire Construction topped Powell River Moose 5-0 in a fourth-division tussle Saturday.

KAMLOOPS — Victoria Scorpions, the provincial senior "B" volleyball champions, missed out adding the British Columbia "A" title to their list of laurels by dropping a 15-6, 15-13, 15-9 decision to Mission Molsons in the tournament final here Sunday.

Scorpions gained the final by winning eight games in round-robin play and then beating B.C. Olympic Juniors of Vancouver, 15-11, 15-6 in a semi-final.

Molsons advanced by downing Victoria Hammers in the other semi-final.

Anxious Crewman Killed as Car Spins

Times News Services

A crewman at the Atlanta 500 stock car race in Hampton, Ga., was killed Sunday when he was struck by a spinning car heading for a pit stop.

Dennis Wade, 18, of Charlotte, N.C., was dead upon arrival at a nearby hospital.

Witnesses said rookie driver Dave Watson was the frontrunner when he began to run out of gas and headed for a pit stop. When he tried to gear down, the wheels locked and the car went out of control.

Wade was running toward the car with a hydraulic jack to change the tires when he was struck and knocked about 20 metres into the air.

Buddy Baker, benefitting from mechanical problems that slowed his two closest competitors in the final 100 miles, sped to an 18-second victory in the race.

Baker, breaking a victory drought dating back to May, 1976, finished ahead of Bobby Allison. Darrell Waltrip was third, about 100 yards behind Allison and 28 seconds behind Baker. Both Allison and Waltrip complained of losing power in cylinders in their car motors.

Neil Bonnett won a four-abreast photo finish in the windup to the 1978-79 International Race of Champions series at Hampton on Saturday and Mario Andretti came from nowhere to grab second and win the season points championship.

Andretti, reigning world champion, collected $75,000 from a purse of $300,000.

Bonnett, Andretti, Bobby Allison and Cale Yarborough came down to the wire together in the exciting finish.

And in Sebring, Fla., winning the $75,000 12 Hours of Sebring auto endurance race Saturday was partial vindication for a disappointment last month for the team of Roy Woods, Bob Akin and Rob McFarlin,

Their Porsche Turbo was the slowest of three entered by Californian Dick Barbour, but it survived the mechanical problems of sister cars that finished third and fourth.

McFarlin took the checkered flag just one lap and one minute and 14 seconds ahead of last year's Sebring champion team of Charles Mendez and Brian Redman. The winning average speed after covering 239 laps on the 5.2-mile Sebring Course — 1,242.8 miles — was 108.466 m.p.h.

Peckford Picks Up Nfld. Reins from Moores

ST. JOHN'S (CP) — Brian Peckford, a school teacher by profession but chosen to become Newfoundland's third premier since the province entered Confederation 30 years ago, says he has a budget and some rule changes to make in the legislature before he thinks about calling a provincial election.

Peckford, 36, won on the third ballot Saturday as Newfoundland's Progressive Conservatives met to choose the man to replace Premier Frank Moores.

Moores announced in January he was retiring from provincial politics. Peckford was first elected to the legislature in 1972 and served as mines and energy minister under Moores.

Jubilant supporters raise Peckford on their shoulders

As Peckford looked to the days ahead and a meeting with Moores to formally assume the premier's job, Bill Rowe, leader of the Opposition Liberals, called for an immediate general election.

An election should be called in Newfoundland before the end of April, Rowe said in an interview Sunday.

"Nothing has changed," Rowe said. "We still see the same faces in the PC caucus now as we did before the convention. One big difference is that their best campaigner, their best politician, Frank Moores, has left the scene.

"Nobody in the present PC caucus, including the new leader, can match Frank Moores in that regard."

The most recent Newfoundland general election was Sept. 16, 1975.

Peckford defeated nine other candidates to win the party's top job Saturday.

"You've chosen a good man," Moores said when the Peckford victory was announced.

Peckford said he likely will call a mid-week news conference to outline his plans once he has been sworn in as the province's third premier since Newfoundland became a province in 1949.

Liberal Joey Smallwood was the province's first premier and held that job for 22 years. He was defeated by Moores in 1972.

"There are some backbenchers I have to look at," Peckford said when asked after the convention about his plans for a cabinet shuffle.

On the question of Rowe's challenge for a quick general election call, Peckford seems to prefer to wait at least until this summer before dissolving the legislature and seeking a mandate.

Peckford said in an interview he wants to bring down a budget, introduce some new legislative initiatives and overhaul the rules of proceedure in the legislature.

"I'm going to present tangible alternatives," he said. One of the things Peckford said he is concerned about is the legislature's widespread public image as a zoo — the main reason he says he wants rules changed.

There were 644 registered delegates at the convention, 638 of whom voted in each of the first two ballots. Peckford won 200 votes on the first ballot, 272 on the second and 331 on the third and final ballot.

His closest rival at the convention was Industrial Development Minister William Doody who managed 184 votes on the second ballot.

Rail Fund a Ploy?

FORT NELSON (CP) — Mayor Andrew Schuck says a recent $1 million government grant to keep open a B.C. Railway extension to this community is only a temporary solution.

Schuck said he wants the government to enact legislation to ensure continuous operation of the 420-kilometre line from Fort St. John, the railway's terminus, for years to come.

If the government is serious, he said, it will have no ojection to legislation; if it is playing political games obviously, it wouldn't want to commit itself.

He branded the grant an election ploy and predicted there would be an election within six months. While he welcomes the money because it will sustain the railway and the town's economy, he said he wonders what action the government will take after an election.

Truck Hit Pickets: Union

FRASER LAKE (CP) — A spokesman for a union on strike against Endako Mines said a truck ran through a picket line and injured three mine workers Sunday.

A company spokesman, however, denied the claim and said the truck passed through the line without incident.

Jim Reid, president of local 17 of the Canadian Association of Industrial, Mechanical and Allied Workers, said a tractor-trailer carrying three men and another vehicle drew up to the picket line at the mine site, about 140 kilometres west of Prince George.

Moments later, it ran through the line and struck three union workers, he said. After taking on a load at the mine, the truck left.

Mel Thompson, a spokesman for Placer Developments, which owns the mine, said the truck, arriving to pick up molybdenum at the mine, stopped at the picket line, the driver spoke to the pickets and then proceeded without incident.

"Our objective is not to get involved in any violence," he said.

The union, which represents 485 workers at the mine, has been on strike since Feb. 15 following a breakdown in negotiations for a new contract. The last agreement expired Dec. 31.

Thompson said the union has demanded a wage and benefit package totalling 43 per cent in a 30-month contract, with 24.5 per cent in the first year. The company has offered 29 per cent over 36 months, with 8.9 per cent in the first year.

Night On Slopes Survived

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) — Two 15-year-old boys who went missing Saturday during a ski trip on nearby Mount Seymour were found tired, wet, hungry but in good condition Sunday after spending a night in the open.

Daniel Ford and Dominique Wurtz, both of Vancouver, were spotted by a helicopter a few hours after a search for them got under way Sunday morning. A ground party reached them soon afterwards.

Hearings On Senate Open Without Que., Man., B.C.

OTTAWA (CP) — Quebec, Manitoba and British Columbia will be conspicuous by their absence when the Supreme Court of Canada begins hearings Tuesday on whether Parliament alone can reform the Senate without consent of the provinces.

Quebec's lack of interest in defending any rights provinces may have in such a decision is explained by its independence-minded government's view of federal matters.

Sources here say William Bennett's British Columbia government has been appeased by the recent appointment to the high court of a B.C. judge, Rogers McIntyre of Vancouver.

Bennett's wish for a B.C. representative on the court was met last December after the federal government received Ontario's blessing to fill what was traditionally considered an Ontario vacancy with the west-coast judge.

Manitoba appears to be saving its big guns for another key constitutional issue to come before the top court later this year — whether an 1890 Manitoba languages law wrongly deprives French-speaking residents of the province the right to their own schools.

A decision on the issue is expected soon from the Manitoba Court of Appeal. No matter how it is decided there, it is expected to be appealed to the Supreme Court of Canada.

The Supreme Court will try a related case in June — a challenge to restrictions on the English language in Quebec under Bill 101.

All nine Supreme Court judges will hear the arguments over the extent of Ottawa's powers to go it alone on reforming the Senate.

While nine-men courts have been the rule on all appeals since the appointment of Chief Justice Bora Laskin, there have been exceptions lately due to the illness with heart trouble of the chief justice himself.

The federal cabinet referred the question of Parliament's authority over the Senate after an all-party Senate-Commons committee recommended late last year that this be done.

The Trudeau government wants to replace the Senate with a House of the Federation with new powers whose members would be appointed almost equally by Ottawa and the provinces. Senators now are appointed by the federal government.

Ontario is expected to argue the main points of the provincial stance that the provinces must have a say in such changes under the British North America Act, in essence the Canadian constitution.

The hearing is expected to last three days at the longest, but the court decision probably won't be announced for several months.

With a federal election call expected soon, no parliamentary action can be expected until the new Parliament meets.

Pacific Press Gets Mediator

VANCOUVER (CP) — Pacific Press Ltd. and the joint council of newspaper unions agreed Sunday to appoint a private mediator to try to resolve a labor dispute that has shut down production of the city's two daily newspapers since Nov. 1.

John Kagel, a San Francisco lawyer, assisted in settling the last contract between the company and the six unions which expired Oct. 31.

Peter Dowding, a provincial labor ministry mediator who has sat in on talks since last October, welcomed Kagel's participation but will also remain available to assist in negotiations.

Kagel is expected to enter negotiations Thursday.

In a telephone interview from San Franscisco, Kagel said he had no comment on his involvement.

Phil Needham, joint council chairman, said Kagel's involvement "is the major move so far" in the dispute.

"It's a pretty definite step," he said, adding the talks have progressed little since last fall.

Major obstacles in the dispute have been manning in the press and mailing rooms, and adjustments in job classifications for members of the Vancouver-New Westminster Newspaper Guild, Needham said.

About 1,400 workers are affected by the strike-lockout at the company, which produces the evening Vancouver Sun and the morning Province newspapers.

It's Pants For Spring

MONTREAL (CP) — Pants of all kinds-fat, thin, full, narrow, shirred, pleated, draped, shaped, cuffed and cuffless, drawstrung or belted — and at lengths stopping from instep to ankle were on every Montreal designer's drawing board for spring.

In his Malanson collection, Francois Guenet favors a straight, in-step-length pant with some pleats from the waistband.

He tops his pants with bare camisoles, belted double-breasted blazers and soft coat-dresses.

Margaret Godfrey of Bagatelle concentrates on straight, narrowish classic pants. She give them an even narrower look by teaming them up with long, belted jute jackets.

Gordon Griffin prefers straight, easy pants in soft fabrics. One of the best-looking ideas in his Montroy collection consists of a printed challis shirt with matching pants under an un-lined blazer.

PANTS of all shapes and sizes are coming off the drawing boards of Montreal designers. At left, designer Gordon Griffin features a solid silk blazer over print pants and shirt in his Montoy collection, while at right Francois Guenet features straight in-step-length pants with some pleats from the waistband in his Malanson collection.

Learning Ability Unlimited

OTTAWA (CP) — The only restriction on a child's ability to learn is the limitation his parents place on him, says a group calling themselves Professional Mothers.

Terri Purcell, one of four women from the group who conducted a workshop on the subject, said children can learn the basics of arithmetic at a very early age.

Taught with cards containing up to 100 red dots, children could learn to recognise the difference between a card with 90 dots and one with 89.

The four mothers — Madeleine Charron, Lise St. Amour, Ms. Purcell and Claudette Giguere — took a one-week course at the Institute for the Achievement of Human Potential in Philadephia.

They returned convinced that the first six years of life are the most important in a person's life.

Ms. Charron said children can begin learning to read at birth.

While children are still unable to speak, they can perceive words, she said.

Import Produce Threat

family

By JUDY CREIGHTON

TORONTO (CP) — A CBC television program to be shown Monday night will look at how Canadian farmers may be heading for bankruptcy if something isn't done about foreign imports.

Food For Thought, produced and directed by Doug Lower, raises disturbing questions about government and industry policies toward an easing of Canada's fresh fruit and vegetable producers' growing problems.

The program comes a week after Ottawa announced price reductions on a wide range of imported fruits and vegetables because of a cut in tariffs on the goods.

"Every year, Canadians eat more fresh fruits and vegetables and they buy more — about $2 billion — worth from other growers," Lower said in an interview at a preview screening of the show.

"Their insatiable demand for these products is pushing the Canadian farmer, hampered by a short growing season, closer to bankruptcy.

"Forced to compete against produce dumped into the Canadian market at prices that are difficult to compete with, and further hampered by subsidies to the agriculture business south of the border, Canadian farmers are feeling the bite."

Food For Thought takes its viewers to the fertile valleys and fields of California, where farmers claim they can grow crops year-round for export to Canada.

On the other hand, Canadian farmers have a short season — from mid-June to mid-September.

With the idyllic year-round growing conditions and highly developed mechanical aids, the California farmer is part of an industry whose gross national product ranks in the world's top 10 after the whole of the U.S., Russia, Japan and Germany.

Tom Merrill, a farmer in the fertile Salinas Valley near San Francisco, said in an interview for the show that the valley ships out the equivalent of 400 truckloads of lettuce every day of the year.

Within three days of his crop being harvested, he said, another crop will be planted.

In another program interview, Paul Pappas, vice-president of fresh produce for Loblaws stores, said that in the last year alone, the Canadian consumers' demands for fresh produce has grown by five per cent.

But the program points out that the Canadian farmer is barely able to keep up with the tonnage required.

"Canadian suppliers can and do supply us with the bulk of the product from the middle of June to September but after that we run out," Pappas said.

"Consumers demand more Canadian produce but we just can't get enough."

The program also investigates the Canadian producer and the question of protective tariffs. Many farmers believe protection is needed against cheap imports, particularly when local products are in season.

Hector Delanghe, who grows 18 different crops on his 248-acre farm near Blenheim, Ont., terms the current trade situation "unfair competition."

Canadian farmers face other problems that Delanghe says government and the industry "must come to gripes with."

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: Did you ever determine for certain the author of that beautiful poem, Slow Me Down, Lord? You said 92 people claimed to have written it. Didn't the original author ever copyright it?

CURIOUS

DEAR CURIOUS: The author of Slow Me Down, Lord is Wilfred A. Peterson. He wrote it in 1952 but failed to copyright it, which made it very easy to plagiarize. Three people forwarded "documented" proof claiming authorship. Each sent me a slightly altered version of Peterson's poem, insisting that they originated it. (One even set it to music and is planning to record it.)

When I asked Peterson why he didn't sue these frauds, he said, "I'd rather write than fight."

Peterson is now 78, and perhaps the Lord has answered his prayer and has slowed him down a little, but he continues to be a fast friend and faithful correspondent.

DEAR ABBY: The question arose in your column whether a woman who had borrowed $200 from a friend should pay, interest when nothing was said about interest at the time she borrowed it. (It took her 14 years to pay it back.)

You said the person who lent the money should be glad to get the $200 back after 14 years — never mind the interest.

When a loan agreement is silent with regard to interest, the law usually imputes an interest rate into the agreement.

In any event, inasmuch as prices have more than doubled over the last 14 years, the creditor should have received at last $400 in return.

ATTORNEY

DEAR ATTORNEY: What a person is legally entitled to is oftentimes a far cry from what he gets. I maintain that, after a 14-year wait, the lady was lucky to see her $200 again.

DEAR ABBY: Can a girl get pregnant from kissing with her mouth open?

CONNIE

DEAR CONNIE: No. But it's a good beginning.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "VANCOUVER INQUIRY": No one said it better than Moliere: "No one is safe from slander. The best way is to pay no attention, but live in innocence and let the world talk."

Be Discreet With Plants

By PAULINE GRAVES

The orgy of living with plants is just about over. The fad grew slowly until it reached the heights of the 1890s when every Victorian parlor resembled a jungle of rubber plants and aspidistra.

In the past several years what home would be complete without a Ficus Benjamina and Boston Fern among others? The trend has been all to the good, even when carried to ridiculous extremes by some homeowners and decorators, because plants soften and freshen a room as nothing else can. However, today's direction is to use plants discreetly and only where they truly enhance a room.

An example is showm here, in a house decorated by Pat Yeiser. A pass-through betweem kitchen and family room looms large and empty, even though marvellously functional.

Plants are needed here, but placed on the counter they interfere with food preparation. Hanging plants provide the solution, but instead of conventional baskets, large, round trays are the choice. Nylon filament, four to each tray, suspend the trays from overhead hooks.

Although the trays are the same size, 32 inches in diameter, they are at different heights for greater interest. They partially block the pass-through opening and eliminate the empty look, but the counter remains clear. Lined with aluminum foil, the trays will not be damaged by water drainage and they are large enough to support several plants each.

Remember not to give your hairdo a quick mist of hair spray near a wall covered with foil-type paper. The hair spray can spot the pretty paper permanently. That's why some wallpaper sales people won't recommend that type of paper for bathroom walls.

Check It Out, Now

By MICHAEL LAMM

DEAR MIKE: My 1977 Olds 88 with the 454-cid V-8 is in good condition generally, but the automatic transmission has a way of sounding very slushy on take-off — slipping and churning. This seems to clear up after driving awhile, though, and the car feels normal. Does this have the makings of a serious transmission problem? — SLIPPING & CHURNING.

DEAR SLIP: Could be. There might be leakage at the filter O-ring inside the transmission pan. Or you might have a torque converter problem. If you're off warranty, have a good transmission shop check the car out. Catching a bad converter now might save you money later on.

DEAR MIKE: My 1970 Plymouth Cuda with the 340 V-8 tends to overheat, even in cold weather. I've changed the water pump, got the radiator recored, removed the thermostat, flushed the system and am running antifreeze. Nothing helps. The gauge sits on hot, and the engine gurgles after I shut it down. Hope you can give me a clue. — HOT CUDA.

DEAR HOT: Possibly a cracked head or block; also possibly an internal obstruction in one of your water passages. Or could be a soft hose that's collapsing at speed. Let a good radiator shop test your cooling system.

DEAR MIKE: What makes the air-conditioner fanbelt on my 1975 New Yorker jump off its pulley every few thousand miles. The air conditioner doesn't have to be on. The belt jumps off and gets tangled with the blades and gouges the radiator. It's becoming a bad habit. — BELT JUMPER.

DEAR JUMPER: Chrysler products with the 400- and 440-cid V-8's do have this problem with air. The belt rolls off the idler pulley. This pulley is sometimes mounted incorrectly because it has casting flash around the hole in the block where the mounting bolt screws in. If the pulley is canted, it makes the belt jump. You might have to file away the flash.

DEAR MIKE: After I put new sparkplugs into my 1976 Datsun 280-Z, the heater stopped putting out warm air. It blows only cold air now. I checked the heater fuse, which is all right. Please answer soon. — CHILLY.

DEAR CHILLY: You probably pulled loose a vacuum line that controls the position of your heater doors.

Vial-of-Life Canada-Wide

Leslie Holbrook

Brand new in Canada is Vial of Life — a project that could save your life by enabling speedier treatment in the case of a home emergency.

It is particularly advantageous if you live alone.

The Canadian program was started early this year by the North Bay Golden Age Club, surely one of the most active and successful senior's groups in the country. (They have made this column before.)

Prior to introducing the program the North Bay club discussed it with their district medical association, police, fire department and ambulance authorities. All endorsed the idea, believing it would be of considerable assistance in emergencies.

The program which already has proven successful in a number of U.S. communities is a simple one. For a modest sum sufficient to cover costs (currently 30 cents) you receive an informaion sheet to complete, a plastic vial, a pocket-size plastic envelope and a Vial of Life sticker.

On the standard format information sheet you record basic data (name, age, phone number of doctor, etc.) and then detail medical information that will aid in speedy and correct treatment by those responding to an emergency.

The completed sheet is places in the vial and stored in your refrigerator; this spot is chosen because it provides good protection from fire.

The Vial of Life sticker is affixed to the front of your refrigerator to alert emergency workers that they have immediate access to vital information although you may not be able even to tell them your name at the time.

The picket-size folder can be carried in purse or pocket for additional protection.

Many people with special medical problems or allergies already wear the bracelet or necklace of Medic-Alert which long has been a valuable program. Vial of Life, concentrating on home emergencies should provide a worthwhile counterpart to protect us when things go wrong.

In Victoria, the Vial of Life program has been organized by the Ambulance Employees Union, with service clubs and stores paying for the kits and distributing them free.

At present, Macdonald's Furniture Mart, 1420 Broad, is the only place with a supply of vials and decals, but a number of drug stores and service clubs should have them by the end of the month.

Those interested in helping distribute the kits should contact the Ambulance Employees Union, Vial of Life, P.O. Box 5062, Victoria, V8R 6N3, or phone Randy L'Heureux, 595-8175.

If eating were not one of the pleasures of life, not so many people would have to diet. However, as you know, overeating and unbalanced eating can create health problems.

The 28-page booklet The Joy of Eating is a guide to better nutrition. One chapter explains the nutritional needs through the years from those of a nursing mother to the elderly. The booklet says, for instance, that if you want to lose weight, eat small meals regularly. Choose nutritional foods and avoid empty calories, such as potato chips, soft drinks and chocolate bars.

There is also advice on budget-wise shopping. For example, sugar-added cereals and heavily processed foods cost more and offer less nutritional value than the plainer variety. Unsweetened, whole grain cereals are the most nourishing and least expensive.

The best milk buy is powdered milk. It is the most economical and nutritionally excellent. For the bread basket, whole grain breads are recommended.

The guide reminds you that you need only three or four ounces of meat per serving.

This booklet is available from: The Mutual Life Assurance Company of Canada, Waterloo, Ont. N2J 4C5.

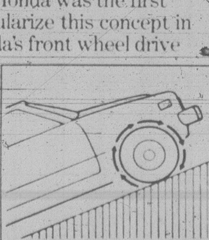
FOR THREE YEARS RUNNING FRONT WHEEL DRIVE HAS MADE HONDA CIVIC THE FRONT RUNNER.

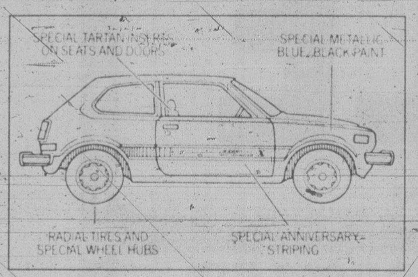
In the past ten years there've been a lot of new car concepts that have come and gone. There's also been one that has come and stayed – the Honda Civic. It not only came to Canada and stayed, but it came and drove to the top and stayed. In fact, for the past three years Honda Civic has been the best selling small car in Canada.

YOU DON'T HAVE TO PUSH WHEN YOU'VE GOT PULL.

Undoubtedly, one of the main reasons for Civic's phenomenal success has been its front wheel drive. (Honda was the first to successfully popularize this concept in Canada.) With Honda's front wheel drive system, the motor and transmission are mounted over the drive wheels, so the weight helps the wheels to bite into the snow or mud and pull the car through it. And because the wheels that are pulling the car are the wheels that are steering the car, you also get much better steering control.



A SPECIAL HONDA ANNIVERSARY DESERVES A SPECIAL ANNIVERSARY HONDA.



SPECIAL TARTAN INSERTS ON SEATS AND DOORS
SPECIAL METALLIC BLUE/BLACK PAINT
RADIAL TIRES AND SPECIAL WHEEL HUBS
SPECIAL ANNIVERSARY STRIPING

The spring of 1979 marks a rather special time for Honda dealers, because it's the 10th Anniversary of Canadian Honda Motor Ltd. So to help commemorate this special time, we've developed a limited edition of a very special car – the Honda Special X. The Special X comes with special metallic Blue/Black paint. Special striping. Radial tires. Five-speed transmission. A special tartan cloth insert in the seats and doors. A wood grain steering wheel. And many more Special X features. It also comes with all the other features that have helped make Honda the best selling small car in Canada. Front wheel drive, of course, is standard. As is rack and pinion steering. Fully independent suspension on all four wheels. Power assisted front disc brakes. Reclining front bucket seats. Tinted windows. Carpeting. And a reputation that says it's one of the most enjoyable cars in the world to drive.

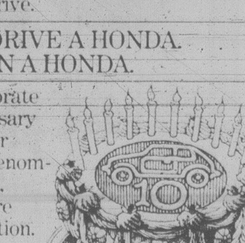
TEST DRIVE A HONDA. WIN A HONDA.



To commemorate our 10th Anniversary and thank you for making us so phenomenally successful, Honda dealers are having a celebration. And they're giving Hondas away. They're giving away one Special X a week for ten consecutive weeks. Then they're giving away a Honda Accord Hatchback and a Honda Accord Sedan. They're also giving away one of the exciting new Honda Preludes, the GT car re-thought. And, as if that wasn't enough, they're also giving away 100 Z-50 Honda Mini-Bikes. And to top it all off, everyone who comes in for a test drive during the celebration gets a Honda 10th Anniversary cap.

How do you enter? It's a piece of cake. All you have to do is go to your Honda dealers and fill in an entry form. And don't forget to check out the complete line of Hondas available. And take a test drive. You'll see that Honda didn't get to be No. 1 by being second best. Contest ends May 31, 1979.

S. Africa Apartheid Payoffs Charged

JOHANNESBURG (UPI) — South Africa's Information Department scandal took a dramatic new turn today with allegations that government funds were paid to influence key political and labor leaders in both Africa and the West to support South Africa's apartheid policies.

The claims were made by former Information Secretary Dr. Eschel Rhoodie to the Rand Daily Mail at a secret location in Europe, the newspaper said.

"It is true that some of the secret projects involved major political figures in more than one Western country, and that money was involved," Rhoodie told the newspaper.

Elsewhere, reports in London said Hugh Jenkins, a leading Labor Party member, was preparing to ask Parliament to grant Rhoodie political asylum because he feared British politicians were being referred to in the bribery allegations.

The scandal, which broke about a year ago, involves the alleged secret use by the former Information Department of more than $35 million of taxpayers' money to fund projects aimed at trying to improve South Africa's image at home and abroad.

It has brought political disgrace and the resignation of the former Information Minister Connie Mulder and several other senior officials in the department.

Rhoodie said former Prime Minister John Vorster had also known of all such projects, and that as far as he knew so had the full cabinet, including the present Prime Minister P.W. Botha.

"I have documentary proof of some of these projects, but I am not going to release it at this stage," Rhoodie said, accordining to the Rand Daily Mail.

Botha has repeatedly stated he will resign from his post if proof can be produced to show that he knew of any such irregularities.

Rhoodie fled the country three months ago and despite having his passport withdrawn has managed to keep on a constant move between secret locations in South America and Europe.

In another development, the South African government's announced amendment of the Police Act brought accusations of censorship from the opposition press today.

The amendment, announced Friday by Police Minister Jimmy Kruger, makes it an offence to publish incorrect facts about the police without reasonable grounds for believing the information true.

"This sounded fair and obvious enough," an editorial in the Star said, "but in effect it would mean that the press would be barred from publishing a story if the police refused to verify it."

The newspapers complained that the Prisons Act, described as necessary to stop "unwarranted attacks on the prison system which would detrimentally affect the regard in which it should be held," in effect barred news about prisons or prisoners unless the Prisons Department had passed it.

West German CDU Suffers Setbacks

BONN (AP) — Christian Democrats suffered setbacks in two West German elections Sunday. They lost their bid to capture the West Berlin mayoralty and saw their power trimmed in Rheinland-Pfalz.

The balloting made no basic changes in the three major West German parties — the governing coalition of Social Democrats and Free Democrats and the opposition Christian Democratic Union (CDU).

But the CDU's loss of support in its traditional strongold of Rheinland-Pfalz might put pressure on party leader Helmut Kohl to step aside before next year's countrywide elections.

The CDU dropped four seats in the state election, elecion officials said, but still held 51 of the 100 seats. The Social Democrats gained three for a total of 43 and the Free Democrats added one seat for a total of six. Four minor parties, including the right-wing National Party and Communists, polled too few votes to win a seat.

In West Berlin, an environmentalist party made surprising gains but the alliance of Social Democrats and Free Democrats retained its majority in the divided city's assembly, assuring the re-election of Mayor Dietrich Stobbe. The CDU remains as the city's largest single party.

In Berlin, a complicated ballot and elections for district as well as citywide candidates delayed the vote count. All indications were that the CDU would win about 43.4 per cent, the Social Democrats 42.9 per cent, the Free Democrats 7.8 per cent and the environmental Alternative List 4.5 per cent. Several small parties shared the remainder.

French Voters Set Record

PARIS (Reuter) — The political map of France was unchanged today after a record turnout in municipal elections Sunday.

All political parties drew comfort from the election in which a post-war record of 70 per cent of eligible voters turned out to elect local councillors for six-year terms.

The Socialist party, with 26 per cent of the vote, emerged as the largest single group and improved its position in northern France and along the south coast.

The Communists, whose share of the vote was about 18.6 per cent, made gains in the steel-manufacturing areas of northern and eastern France, where thousands of workers are faced with layoffs under government plans to streamline the industry.

But the centre-right government coalition, whose majority in the National Assembly was not at stake, did well in central and western France.

Traditionally, the left does well in the elections. Both opposition parties had called on voters to use the ballot to censure the government's economic policies.

But there did not appear to be a significant anti-government swing. So far the various left-wing parties have won 239 seats and the government supporters 145 seats.

Of those seats where no candidate won an absolute majority, the left seemed likely to win 427 seats and government supporters 279 in next Sunday's deciding vote.

In another 280 districts the voting was too close to enable a prediction of the final outcome.

Talk to the write people.

We are in favour of having the Postal Service become a Crown Corporation: But there's more to it than that...

When did the idea of creating a Crown Corporation first surface?

In 1947, by the Postal Workers' Union exactly 31 years ago.

What difference would a change of employer make?

This new organization would free this public service from interference by government ministries. We would have just one boss.

Now that the proposed bill has been introduced, why do we still harbour fears about it?

Because while waiting for the bill (C-27) to become law (which could take a long time) our problems remain and in fact, increase daily. Furthermore, the nature of the Crown Corporation that the government is developing for us does not conform in its structures to the kind of organization generally considered a Crown Corporation.

Why do we say that the proposed Crown Corporation is not a true one?

Because the government has created unbelievable confusion within this Crown Corporation by saddling the organization of this state-owned Corporation with an administrative structure similar to the old Postal ministry.

We have more details to give you so that you can better form an accurate opinion of the Post Office's problems.

Write us at P.O. Box 8871, Alta Vista Terminal, Ottawa. We'll send you a special folder.

Whites Drafted to Assure Vote

SALISBURY (UPI) — Every able-bodied white man in Rhodesia will be drafted for security duties during April's national elections for a black majority government that black terrorists vow they will disrupt.

The police today begin registering men between the ages of 50 and 59 to serve as part-time guards against terrorist attacks. Only men who are infirm or with essential employment will be exempt, a government statement said.

Younger men must report for duty in the police and army April 14 to serve in full-time military operations for at least 10 days.

The Patriotic Front, a Soviet-backed coalition of black guerrillas banned in Rhodesia, has threatened to disrupt the voting. It said the elections will be turned into a full-scale gun battle for power.

Rhodesian warplanes have kept up a steady drumbeat of raids in past weeks against guerrilla sanctuaries in neighboring countries.

In the latest of the announced attacks, Rhodesian jets Saturday screamed across the border into Mozambique for the fourth time in six days to bomb and strafe a guerrilla concentration near the central town of Chimoio.

A military spokesman gave no details, but said all of the planes returned safely to base.

While maintaining military action against the guerrillas, Prime Minister Ian Smith's government has offered them a general amnesty if they support the elections.

The amnesty offer, announced in radio broadcasts and leaflet drops in bush country, said the guerrillas would be able to keep their guns and return to their families provided they supported the elections.

Black nationalist politicians in agreement with the elections — the first chance blacks have had to exercise the right to choose rulers from their own race since the arrival of the white man in the 19th century — are travelling the countryside seeking wider support.

U.S.-Soviet Arms Treaty 'Very Close'

Washington Post

WASHINGTON — U.S. Secretary of State Cyrus Vance said Sunday that the United States and the Soviet Union are so close to completing the framework for a new strategic arms limitation treaty that "the next several days" may determine the timing of a summit meeting to sign the document.

"We have not completed it, but we really are now at what I would call the bitter end — we're very close to completing it," Vance said on the television program "Face the Nation".

At another point he said the negotiations are now down to "one or two" remaining issues, and "if we can make progress on those, then I think we can move promptly on to scheduling a summit."

Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin met with Vance to discuss SALT last Friday for the second time in as many weeks. Carter administration officials appeared to be encouraged after Friday's meeting, and there were indications that high-level decisions in the two capitals in the next few days might set the stage for final agreements.

According to informed sources, the Soviets have expressed the view that Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev is not well enough to make a trans-Atlantic flight to attend a summit. The United States has suggested Alaska or Hawaii as an alternative to a meeting on the U.S. mainland, but the Russians are reported to prefer Geneva or some other place closer to home.

One of the still unresolved SALT questions, according to official sources, concerns encoding of telemetry, or missile-testing data, as it is electronically beamed back to earth by Soviet rockets. The two sides have agreed to ban any such encoding that would impede verification of the provisions of the SALT pact, but the United States has returned to the Soviets at least twice in recent months with proposals to tighten this provision.

Aftershock Rattles Mexico Area

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Another aftershock from last Wednesday's major earthquake rocked central Mexico Sunday, the U.S. Geological Survey reported.

Sundays's quake registered 5.8 on the Richter scale and was centred about 65 miles northwest of Acapulco. This is the same area where a damaging 7.9 quake was recorded Wednesday and where a number of aftershocks have since occurred.

The USGS had no immediate report on casualties or damage.

Horse Tail Cutters Trotted off to Prison

BUDAPEST (UPI) — Justice has finally caught up with an outlaw gang that chopped off the tails of more than 100 horses, terrorizing Hungarian stables for two years.

A court in the central Hungarian town of Szekszard sentenced David Istvan to 30 months in prison and Janos Horvath to 22 months after convicting them of being the ringleaders of the notorious "Horse Tail Cutting Gang."

The outlaws sold the horse tails for $25 per 2.2 pounds to upholstery shops that used the hairs for stuffing.

2 ◇	Pass	2 ♡	Dble
Pass	Pass	Redble	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead - two of hearts.

Odd things sometimes happen even in world championships. For example, take this deal from the match between Italy and Australia in 1976. With Arturo Franco North and Benito Garozzo South for Italy, the bidding went as shown. They played the hand at two hearts redoubled with a 3-2 trump fit! Furthermore, the contract could not be defeated! And so, the brilliant Garozzo's penchant for the unusual and the dramatic paid good dividends once again.

West led a trump, won by South with the queen. After cashing the A-K of spades, Garozzo led another spade. West could have ruffed with the jack and led another trump, but this would not have prevented declarer from scoring dummy's ten of hearts by playing a fourth round of spades. West realized this and he therefore discarded a club on the third spade.

Declarer ruffed in dummy with the nine, played a club to his ace, and led still another spade. This time West ruffed high and returned a trump, but he was fighting a losing cause. Garozzo scored three trump tricks — the queen, the nine, and ace — and also the A-K of spades, the A-K diamonds and ace of clubs for a total of eight tricks and a score of 790 points.

At the other table, with Australia North-South, the bidding went:

North	East	South	West
1 ◇	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
1 NT	Pass	3 NT

East led a heart, dummy's queen losing to the king, and West returned a heart to the ace. Declarer led a diamond from dummy to his ten, which won, and he then scored nine tricks when the diamonds proved to be divided 3-3. So, Italy gained only 190 points on the deal, but it was all very exciting while it lasted.

"I bought you that shirt we saw," said Sally, handing her husband a carton. "And also a tie that looked good with it."

Harry smiled. "Thanks a lot, but they must have cost quite a bit."

Sally shook her head. "Not really," she replied. "If the shirt had been three bucks less it would have been ¾ of the total, but if the tie had been three bucks more it would have been ⅓ of the total."

What are the prices?

(Answer tomorrow.)

CITY WATCHDOG RICHARDS Report 100. Congratulations to Terry Spence for his CFAX Editorial regarding "On the Street Parking" He said "There's something rotten in the way on-street parking regulations are being enforced in downtown Victoria" and he thinks Mayor Mike Young and the police commmission should be looking into it. Your City's watchdog agrees with Terry's editorial. Several people complained to Alderman Bill Tindall months ago about the Shopping Spree Merchandise promotion tickets and your City's Watchdog was informed that even City Hall was told and it appeared nobody with any authority tried to stop the distribution of these tickets. Thursday night two events took place shortly before nine on Douglas Street. The driver of a red Toyota car licence EGS 7- made a U-Turn from the west curb in front of Eatons to go north, and a street fight took place at the corner of Yates and Douglas before police arrived. This proves the need for police foot patrols on the downtown streets. On March 29th Your City's Watchdog will be conducting a trip to Nanaimo for those people who wish to celebrate the 91st anniversary of the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway first passenger train into Victoria. It will cost $10.00 per person and the tickets will be sold at the 1315 Blanshard Street office on a first come first serve basis. Please phone 383-6259 to Your Citys Watchdog, C. Joe Richards, for information regarding city matters or this train trip.

HOW TO WRITE

A GOOD

CLASSIFIED ACTION

AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room, etc., for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably by giving complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. Monday through Friday, 8:00 to 5:30 p.m. Saturday. Don't allow the reader to speculate.

The Lord is my Shepherd,
I shall not want
He maketh me to lie down in green pastures
He leadeth me beside the still waters
He restoreth my soul
He leadeth me in the path of righteousness for his name sake
Yea though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death
I will fear no evil
For thou art with me, thy rod and thy staff they comfort me
Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies,
Thou anointest my head with oil
My cup runneth over
Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life and I will dwell in the House of the Lord forever.

Bells Sound Call for Help

CHUDLEIGH, England (AP) — A church warden working on a parish clock fell down a bell tower and injured himself, then summoned help by ringing a distress signal with the bells, authorities said. Police sped to the church as the bells pealed, but it took almost three hours to extricate Kenneth Hervin through a two-foot space in the tower. He had head injuries and both his legs were broken.

Vote for Labor Packs Ulster Price Tag

Washington Post

LONDON — The Protestant Ulster Unionists are demanding major concessions for Northern Ireland from British Prime Minister James Callaghan as their price for helping to keep Callaghan's minority Labor Party government in power.

At stake is not only whether Callaghan will have to call a national election now or when he prefers, in October, but also whether the British government is going to be forced to follow the dictates of the Protestant Unionists in ruling divided Northern Ireland.

Several key Ulster Unionist members of Parliament have signalled that they will continue to support Callaghan only if his government returns some home rule to Northern Ireland and spends $200 million to send cheap British natural gas to Ulster through a pipeline under the Irish Sea.

"If the government offered to build a pipeline to give us the benefit of natural gas," Ulster Unionist MP Harold McCusker said last week, "some of us might say that it might well be worth repaying them."

Enoch Powell, who has emerged as the leader of a group of seven Ulster Unionist MPs, including McCusker, who hold the fate of Callaghan's government in their hands, demanded both the gas pipeline and a shift from London to Belfast of control over education, health, housing, social services and other governmental functions in Northern Ireland.

However, the Callaghan government has been kept in power by support in Parliament from Scottish and Welsh nationalists and the Ulster Unionists, and it is likely to be deserted by the Scottish and Welsh nationalists soon.

The Scottish nationalists have warned that they and the Welsh nationalists will join with Labor's major opponent, the Conservatives, in trying to bring down Callaghan's government in a vote of no confidence if Callaghan does not bring a plan for limited home rule for Scotland onto the floor of the House of Commons for debate and a vote before the end of the month. Callaghan has been stalling because the Scottish home rule plan has no chance of being approved in Parliament after voters there gave it only lukewarm support in a referendum two weeks ago.

Guerrillas Nabbed

TURIN (UPI) — Police have arrested two suspected Red Brigades urban guerrillas and confiscated large quantities of weapons in an anti-terrorist operation still underway, officers said today.

Police officials refused to identify those arrested, saying secrecy was necessary because more arrests were possible based on the evidence already uncovered.

Investigation sources said the operation began Saturday when an anonymous telephone caller told police two Red Brigades members could be found at a coffee bar in a working class district on the edge of the city.

Marrow Counters Immunity

MADISON, Wis. (UPI) — Doctors have used transplanted bone marrow to counter the immune response of the body of an unidentified Indianapolis woman who underwent a heart transplant operation last week.

The woman was listed in satisfactory condition Sunday at University Hospital.

Doctors transplanted bone marrow from the woman to counter the body's tendency to reject the transplanted heart. The heart was attached to the heart of the 17-year-old woman in an operation March 8, a hospital spokesman said.

Dr. Donald Kahn, chief surgeon, was unavailable for comment on the unique operation. When news of the operation broke Saturday, the hospital issued a statement from Kahn saying his staff had conducted extensive bone marrow-heart transplant tests on animals.

Time to Trim Climbers' Growth

GARDENING
hilda beastall

About this time in early spring we are likely to notice the wild growth made last year on climbing plants — not the hard woody types like the climbing Hydrangea petiolaris and Wistaria but the softer clematis with twining stems.

Last summer and fall were good periods for flowering of the many fine named varieties.

The plants were left over winter with their load of growth to protect the main branches from winter damage. Now the rather exciting job of pruning can be tackled.

First a great deal of the top mass can be cut off. Then look at the space to be covered. Decide which main stems should be retained as a foundation for new growth this spring.

If blossoms are wanted at eye level for instance, cut the main stems back to about four feet, and every strong side stem back to two growths. These will fan out to bear blooms at five and six feet by early summer.

When clematis is wanted to cover a horizontal low fence or a mass of rock face, pruning is done so that new growths will be produced at all points from near the base of the plant up to the higher portions.

The results from this type of pruning of clematis is an unbelievable display of color.

The root area and the lowest woody part of the plant needs care to protect it from hot sun. Mulching with rotted compost and very old cow or horse manure is good because this type of material holds moisture, another great need of the clematis in summer. Don't mulch with peat moss, for clematis is a lime lover, resenting the acidity created by a peat mulch.

East-facing plants experience less of a problem in keeping the root area cool, but those facing south or west need an artificial barrier to screen the soil and the lower stem. Very often this is more easily done with nearby plants having a fairly shallow rooting habit so they do not compete with the clematis for water during summer.

Two-inch new growths can be seen on lower main stems of Comtesse de Bouchard, a fine old rose, pink with a mauve cast at some seasons. This and others of the same class which bloom with medium size flowers throughout summer to hard frost of late fall are pruned hard every spring. Usually we prune down to just above two or three strong growths on each main stem from the base.

In the group are the purple Jackmanii and Jackmanii Superba, white Huldine, red Ernest Markham, and the delicate pink Hagley Hybrid.

With a surface mulch of old compost or old manure, the growth during May can be measured in inches for a 24 hour period according to an English grower of clematis.

If a tangle of neglected clematis growth confronts you in a "new" garden and there is no clue as to variety or time of blooming it is safe to reduce all growth to say, two feet from the ground. Then thin out the remainder to about three strong canes with live shoots. If it turns out to be an early bloomer it should have a few flowers perhaps in late summer. If a late variety, the results will be spectacular.

When flowers open, get them identified at one of the many local flower shows this summer and from then on, prune accordingly.

Don't neglect watering during summer, for with the mass of growth there must be nutrients available through moisture.

Cancer Fight 'Gain'

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A cancer researcher says he believes a major gain has been discovered in the fight to detect and combat melanoma — the highly-dangerous skin cancer that kills 40 per cent of its victims.

Dr. Soldano Ferrone, principal investigator of a team at Scripps Clinic and Research Foundation, said the team's findings may help detect cancer "hotspots."

The team has been able to make antibodies that attach themselves to molecules associated with human melanoma cells.

"If you suspected metastasis (spread of the cancer), you could label the antibodies, inject them into the blood of patients and the antibodies would bind to tumor cells and reveal the presence of the cancer wherever it was growing," Ferrone told the San Diego Union.

The antibodies, produced by rabbits in response to injections of purified tumor antigens from human melanoma cells, can be labelled with easily-detectable radioactive chemicals, he said.

All to Have Say On Que.: Clark

MONTREAL (CP) — Conservative leader Joe Clark says he "wouldn't refuse to meet" with Premier Rene Levesque if the Tories were in power in Ottawa when the Quebec government won a mandate to negotiate sovereignty-association in a provincial referendum.

If he becomes prime minister, Clark said, he would reconvene the federal-provincial talks on constitutional reform before Quebec could hold its referendum. The idea would be "to show Quebecers it is possible for this new government to get some new movement in the federal-provincial impasse."

But he acknowledged there would not likely be enough time for adequate discussion of a new division of legislative power between Ottawa and the provinces.

But any discusions on Quebec's status would require input from all the other provinces as well, and "I would not discuss the end of the country," Clark said in a copyright interview in the Montreal Star.

Asked what would happen if Quebecers voted for political sovereignty combined with economic association with English Canada, and what he would do if Levesque then requested discussions with Ottawa on the matter, Clark responded:

"I wouldn't refuse to meet. I would say certainly we will have the meeting and we will discuss other things but I would not discuss the end of the country."

In addition, he said, "the other provinces would be involved" in any discussions, although he did not say clearly whether the discussions would involve all the provincial premiers meeting at once.

"I would want to hold open my right, as I presume the prime minister does now, to talk individually with premiers in preparation for a conference, but in terms of any discussions, discussions would have to involve all the parties."

It is not sufficiently understood in Quebec that talks would have to involve all the provinces in some way, not just Quebec and Ottawa, the Tory leader said.

Asked if he thought any of the other provincial premiers would break ranks with Ottawa and push harder for negotiations with Quebec on the question of sovereignty-association, Clark answered:

"I think it's a flat no . . . I think it would be dangerous if Quebecers went into a referendum assuming that there was a willingness to fudge on the side of the rest of the country . . . The other premiers and myself, I think, have recognized that there is naturally going to have to be negotiation about some questions, but not questions relating to the integrity of the country, not questions relating to sovereignty or to association."

Earlier this year, the Conservative leader repudiated a statement by David Crombie, one of his MPs, who had suggested Ottawa should be willing to sit down and negotiate if Quebec votes Yes to sovereignty-association.

Clark agreed with an interviewer's comment that if the Tories fail to increase their Quebec representation in the Commons in the next federal election, some Quebecers would get the impression Canada already consists of two nations, with little in common between French and English.

But he quickly added there is also a danger of a "Liberal government so dominated by Quebec as to make it appear two nations is a possibility . . .

"I think that my chances of gaining new support in Quebec are better than Mr. Trudeau's chances of regaining ground that he has lost in the rest of the country."

The Conservatives currently hold two of Quebec's 74 seats in the House of Commons.

Canada United against Ontario?

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — A member of the federal Task Force on Canadian Unity says it is "common resentment of Ontario that holds Canada together."

Ronald Watts, also principal of Queen's University here, told a symposium on Canadian unity that because of this resentment it is up to the people of Ontario to give the leadership needed to help solve the country's problems.

There is a wide-spread feeling that Ontario has received more benefits and more power than other provinces since Confederation, he said.

"It is extremely important that Ontario provides leadership rather than sitting on the sidelines waiting for someone else to come forward."

Watts said the task force report, A Future Together, released in January, has been misrepresented by the media.

The report is clearly federalist, rejecting sovereignty-association — independence with economic ties — proposed by the Parti Quebecois, he said.

But Watts, one of two Ontario members of the eight-member task force, said he was fascinated by Parti Quebecois response to the report.

"The PQ seems to be somewhat puzzled by what we say . . . Rene Levesque has both disparaged it and embraced it."

Watts said Canadians should not think that the country can muddle through its unity problems.

In other countries, problems have accumulated slowly at first, but "once things snap, disintegration occurs and things move very quickly.

"We should deal with problems before the point of no return.

"It is my own belief we cannot take the existence of Canada for granted."

The symposium was the third meeting of Outlook Ontario 1979, sponsored by the Council for Canadian Unity.

Israeli Cabinet Okays Treaty By 15-2 Vote

Times News Services

The Israeli cabinet today overwhelmingly accepted the Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty, giving its approval to the first pact of its kind between Arab and Jew and clearing the way for its presentation to parliament where endorsement seemed certain.

The Israeli radio said the treaty will be signed in Washington next Monday.

Meanwhile, however, U.S. national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski Sunday failed to win support for the proposed treaty from conservative Saudi Arabia and Jordan — although Saudi Arabia will not halt its $2 billion in annual aid to Cairo in retaliation.

Top Jordanian officials made it clear that Jordan did not agree with the U.S. view that the main threat to stability in the Middle East was Soviet and/or radical Arab ambitions.

"We think the main threat is Israeli occupation and expansion," one official said.

The Israeli cabinet vote accepting the nine-article treaty was 15-2, including that of Defence Minister Ezer Weizman who was in Washington, Cabinet Secretary Arye Naor said.

Voting against the pact were Agriculture Minister Ariel Sharon, the hero of the 1973 October War who is responsible for Jewish settlement in the occupied territories, and Transport Minister Haim Landau, Naor said.

The cabinet voted less than 24 hours after Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan urged an early first concrete step in implementing the first agreement — opening the border between Egypt and Israel a month after the treaty signing instead of nine months.

The open borders, Dayan said, would facilitate Egyptian participation in negotiations for Palestinian autonomy.

But he stressed the right of movement across the international border would have to be mutual.

The cabinet decided in addition to establish a committee to draw up proposals for Palestinian self-government in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip prior to negotiations with Egypt on the plan, Naor said.

Prime Minister Begin will head the committee and it will start work following the treaty signing, Naor said.

The army will resume its withdrawal from Sinai Sunday, defence ministry sources said. The military began withdrawing non-combat equipment in the fall but halted the operation when the treaty negotiations ran into a deadlock.

With Israeli parliamentary approval all but certain, the government already has made final plans for the ceremony in Washington where President

P.M. 'Spoofing' On Election Call

OTTAWA (CP) — A spokesman for the prime minister's office said Sunday the prime minister has not called an election.

Pat Gossage, in a telephone interview, said when Prime Minister Trudeau said Saturday at the annual Parliamentary Press Gallery dinner he had spoken with Governor-General Edward Schreyer about dissolving Parliament to call an election he "was spoofing."

"I will not hang on the prime minister's words" under those conditions, Gossage said.

"But I can say the prime minister will not call an election at this time."

The press gallery dinner is recognized as a time for leg-pulling — gallery members putting on the elected members and the MPs and cabinet ministers getting back at the gallery members.

Trudeau told the gathering of reporters and politicians that: "in the next 24 hours you people will have to worry whether this is just another of my lousy jokes and I'll have to worry about whether you'll respect the confidentiality of this dinner."

Doctors in Fee Battle

Doctors may be forced to opt out of the B.C. Medical Plan unless the provincial government increases fees for service, Dr. Norman Ridgley warned today.

Ridgley, executive director of the B.C. Medical Association, said the association has been negotiating with the health ministry since November.

If a reasonable settlement is not reached by April 1, quitting the plan is one move the doctors may be forced to take.

He said doctors might bill patients the difference between what the government is prepared to pay and the schedule of fees set by the BCMA.

Should this happen, he said, the doctors will not bill old age pensioners, people on social assistance and others who are unable to afford the additional costs.

Ridgley said doctors in B.C. are reluctant to opt out of the provincial plan, as some doctors have already done in Alberta and Ontario, but it may be forced on them.

"Doctors in B.C. have been very responsive. We've tried hard to be reasonable, to negotiate and be patient," he said.

Ridgley noted that in 1970-1971 doctors in Canada accounted for 1.3 per cent of the Gross National Product. This has now been reduced to .9 per cent.

In the same period, Ridgley said, doctors earned 4½ times as much as the average industrial worker. This has now dropped to three times as much.

He pointed out doctors, like everybody else, have been coping with increased overhead expenses.

Ridgley said doctors are happy with the concept of the provincial medical plan but are being forced into a corner where they may have to take action.

"The pressure is on," he said.

Truce Settles Kurds

TEHRAN (AP) — A ceasefire stilled fighting between Kurdish rebels and the Iranian revolutionary government in northwestern Iran today, Radio Iran reported. The truce, arranged by Moslem and military leaders, ended 24 hours of violence in which at least 170 persons were reported killed.

One source reached by telephone said rebels took over a military headquarters building, the police barracks and the radio and television stations and were laying siege to the military barracks at Sanandaj, 400 kilometres west of here, when the ceasefire was declared.

Fighting also was reported in towns around Sanandaj.

Most Kurds, who want autonomy for their region, belong to the Sunni Moslem sect. The Islamic forces of Ayatollah Khomeini's revolutionary government belong to Iran's dominant Shiite sect.

It was not clear what sparked the fighting. By some accounts, it was sparked by the appointment of Shiites to key civil posts in the heavily-Sunni region after the overthrow of Iran's monarchy.

B.C. Offered As Reactor Test Site

By PAUL NICHOLSON
Times Staff

The provincial government is making a serious pitch to have a proposed $1 billion international experimental plant which produces energy like that of the sun located in B.C.

Education, Science and Technology Minister Dr. Pat McGeer confirmed B.C. wants the International Tokamak Reactor (Intor) facility if a plan proposed by the Russians goes ahead.

Scientists hope Intor will produce artificially on earth the same power that is produced by the sun.

If it proceeds, and if B.C. is successful in having it located here, it will transform energy technology in the province, McGeer said in an interview from his University of B.C. lab.

"It would mean B.C. would be among the world leaders in such technology," McGeer said.

Finland and Quebec have already made their bids for the plant.

Fossil fuel energy is depleting and causes environmental problems with CO2 waste and nuclear fission energy is alarming to a lot of people because of its radioactive byproducts, McGeer said.

But power from an an Intor reactor does not have a significant radioactive byproduct problem.

Russia first proposed a project where the latest technology of member nations of the International Atomic Agency build the necessary research facility in a neutral country agreeable to all members.

The IAA is still studying the proposal, McGeer said.

The object of an Intor facility is to see if it is possible to produce the equivalent energy to that produced by the sun — light, heat and helium gas.

According to today's issue of the Monteal Gazette, Quebec is the favored site.

The Soviets apparently are looking to Finland while the U.S. favors a Canadian site and B.C. is pressuring Ottawa to have the plant located here if a Canadian site is agreed upon.

No specific B.C. location is mentioned but the lower mainland is the most likely area.

Trollers Protest Rules

ASTORIA, Ore. (AP) — Representatives of troller fishermen on the United States West Coast have decided to send a delegation to Washington, D.C., to protest proposed federal ocean salmon fishing regulations.

The proposed regulations, among other things, would reduce this year's commercial salmon season by eight weeks.

Fishermen complained that the proposals would put them at a competitive disadvantage to Canadian fishermen.

The trollers said the proposed regulations would be unfairly restrictive, would deprive them of their livelihoods and would deprive consumers of an adequate supply of salmon.

PFMC representatives said the eight-week reduction was necessary to protect diminishing stocks of salmon.

2 More Raise Price of Oil

Times News Services

Mexico and Venezuela have announced oil price increases effective April 1, it was announced today.

Venezuela, a major supplier of oil to Canada and the United States, will increase prices by $1.72 a barrel.

The increase is $1.20 more than that decided upon the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) for the second quarter of 1979, Energy Minister Humberto Calderon Berti told a news conference.

OPEC agreed last December on a staggered 14.5-percent increase in the price of crude oil during 1979. However, prices have risen much faster because of a shortage of oil supplies brought on by civil strife in Iran, a major world producer.

Venezuela raised the price of its fuel oil, which accounts for 48 per cent of the country's oil exports, by 15 per cent March 1.

In Mexico, Petroleos Mexicanos director general Jorge Diaz Serrano did not say how much the increase will be but said "we are carrying out negotiations to set the prices for the next trimester which starts on April 1."

Observers said they believe that price increase will continue to be 50 cents a barrel more than the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries charges. Mexico now sells oil at $14.10 a barrel.

Walkout at Chetwynd An Angry 'Tap Dance'

CHETWYND (CP) — About 300 workers walked off the job on the weekend because they don't like the water at a natural gas plant near here.

The men, members of various unions working at the Dillingham-Delta Pine River gas plant, said they left the job because poor water pressure meant they could not shower or clean up after work.

Van Dycke said the problem arose when the pump system at a well at the construction site broke down and water was brought in by tanker truck.

The water being brought in is chlorinated. Van Dycke said the men do not like the taste, but noted that the water is being taken from the Chetwynd water system — the same system many of the men use in their homes.

Loggers May Defy Fisheries Ban

By MARK HUME
Times Staff

A spokesman for Q.C. Timber Ltd. hinted today his company may defy a federal fisheries cutting ban on a watershed in the Queen Charlotte Islands.

Jack Sexton, general manager of the Vancouver-based company, said fallers who were warned off from cutting timber along Riley Creek last week may go back.

"We've been trying to play it very cool," said Sexton.

"But you get tired of going to bed every night worrying about how it's going to be resolved. We have to face this. We have to bring things to a head."

At issue is a 40-acre tract of timber on steep slopes along Riley Creek, on Rennell Sound.

Federal fisheries officers banned logging on the slopes because they said increased erosion would damage salmon spawning beds in the stream. Subsequent to that move, however, the provincial forestry department approved logging on the site.

"Who controls our forests?" asked Sexton.

"The provincial government or the federal government?"

It could cost a lot to get the answer.

When fallers moved into the controversial area last week they were met by two federal fisheries officers who served them with a letter warning that charges would be laid if cutting continued.

Under Bill C38, the Fisheries Act, anyone resposible for depositing damaging material in fish habitat could face fines of up to $50,000 or jail terms of up to two years.

Sexton said that when the fallers were confronted with possible charges they were scared off.

Sexton said it is up to the fallers to decide whether or not they want to cut in the restricted area and face possible charges.

Meanwhile Sexton said he'd like to see the fight between the federal and provincial governments come to an end.

"I feel like we're caught in a lemon squeezer," he said.

Sexton said one way to resolve the debate over steep slope logging would be to allow the company to log a test area.

And inside, could this be the bunker to shelter our leaders in a nuclear attack?

Nanaimo's Secret Diefenbunker? It Could Be

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

The "Diefenbunker" — the place where our leaders will go in the event of a nuclear holocaust — is ready and waiting, but don't ask for a specific location.

All we're going to tell you is that it's around Nanaimo.

The whole thing's supposed to be a big secret, so big that most of the government leaders don't even know where it is.

The bunker was built in the early 1960s as part of a multi-million dollar national defence program to ensure continuity of government following a nuclear attack.

The program was started by former prime minister John Diefenbaker, hence the name Diefenbunker.

John Blake, the man in B.C. who knows all about the bunker, keeps a pretty zipped lip about it all.

The 65-year-old director of the federal government's emergency planning office in B.C. will only admit it's buried in a large grassy field surrounded by a 12-foot high chain-link fence and no trespassing signs.

Blake is extremely terse about who would be invited to take refuge in B.C.'s shelter of last resort.

He says there is space reserved for only some members of the provincial cabinet.

He won't reveal who is excluded. Senior officials in such vital federal and provincial departments as health and welfare, public works, and communications are guaranteed a place.

And get this — there's a small CBC studio with provision to handle a few members of the press.

Turns out that each province has its own main bunker plus a number of satellite stations.

In B.C. there are four satellites or support centres at Prince Rupert, Prince George, Kamloops and Nelson.

Two more are planned, at Duncan and Sardis.

The feds have one of their own too, a super-bunker at Carp, Ont., 25 miles west of Ottawa.

It's rumored to be about 90 feet underground, on three levels, capped with 20 feet of concrete and another 20 feet of fill, and able to accommodate 400 people with enough food and water to last a month.

Such "facts," however, have never been confirmed.

Blake also refuses to specify the sites of the satellite stations other than to say they are in basements of federal government-owned buildings in each of the cities.

Neither will he say how big the Nanaimo centre is. And as to how many persons it will accommodate, he will only venture "it's in the hundreds."

He says there are beds, offices, and enough food and water for 14 days, the period of time, scientists feel, it takes radioactive materials to decay to the point where it's safe for a person to venture outside.

Blake says in the early 1960s when the scare of nuclear war seemed very real, the people involved knew where to go.

Former Premier W.A.C. Bennett toured the facility as did some members of his cabinet.

But Bennett's son Bill, the current premier, hasn't had the s[illegible]pportunity.

Blake concedes all Bennett probably knows is the bunker's approximate location.

But this week in a casual conversation with a person familiar with the Nanaimo area, a Times reporter asked if he knew where the Diefenbunker is.

"What's a Diefenbunker?" came the reply. "You don't mean the Provincial Watch Centre on that military property off Harewood, do you? Everyone knows that."

Remember, he said it, we didn't.

Dentists Appreciate Help

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

Dentists usually appreciate the Girl Friday in their office more than doctors, says a woman who helps train the members of the Medical Office Assistants of Victoria.

Mrs. Kath Watson, who at one time was president of the MOA, is still active in the field although she no longer works in a medical office.

Her main thrust these days is making sure local doctors have a ready supply of well-trained medical office assistants.

She teaches a 20-week MOA night course at Camosun College, helped by her daughter, Mrs. Susan Wadsworth, who is a registered nurse.

This year they had the largest class ever — 40 — 33 of which will be writing examinations shortly. If they pass they will be awarded MOA certificates.

This is where the rub comes in. Dental assistant certificates are recognized by the dental profession and the provincial education department while MOA certificates are not.

"Dental assistants receive much more co-operation from the dentists but they had to fight, it wasn't easy," Mrs. Watson says.

One breakthrough, however, has been that the B.C. Medical Association is now printing and sending out to its members a letter which outlines the education work carried out by the 13 chapters of the Medical Office Assistants Association of B.C.

Mrs. Watson took over her teaching assignment from the late Mrs. Carla Czarmechi, who initiated the MOA course.

It covers a variety of subjects, ranging from how to fill out death cerificates and other forms, to drug handling and common medical office procedures like pap smears and urinalysis.

While many of the students are newcomers to the business world who see working in a doctor's office as an attactive way to earn a living, Mrs. Watson says there is always a certain number of registered nurses who see working in a doctor's office as a better alternative to a hospital shift system.

The average age of students is 30, she says.

"Several doctors' wives, usually one or two a year, have taken a course," she says. "In an emergency they can get a baby-sitter and help out at their husband's office."

She says one of the benefits to patients from MOA training is the ability of medical office assistants to handle emergencies in a reassuring, calm manner.

WATSON

This is the ninth year Mrs. Watson has taught at Camosun College and she estimates that 450 trained medical office assistants have graduated in that time.

Some will attend the provincial association's eighth annual conference at the Richmond Inn in Richmond May 11 and 12.

Crime Takes A Holiday

First the good news.

Crime took a bit of a holiday in the Greater Victoria region over the weekend.

Now the bad news — like the good weather we've been having lately, it's not going to last.

But police from Sooke to Sidney say it's nice anyway.

There were no major traffic accidents or crimes reported in any of the area muncipalities, for either Saturday or Sunday. Weekends are usually busy times for local law enforcement agencies.

"Not a thing to report," said one police spokesman. "All we had was sunshine."

Summer Job Plan For Area Students Blocked by CUPE

By
LORRAINE LOCHERTY
Times Staff

The Canadian Union of Public Employees has refused for the second consecutive year to approve a provincially-funded project that would have created 40 summer student jobs in Greater Victoria School District.

The school board will probably have to abandon its plan to apply for a labor ministry grant under the Youth Employment Program, according to a memo to trustees from secretary-treasurer Carl Warner.

The board needs permission from CUPE locals 383 and 947 before it can approve the summer work program.

District administration was recommending the board try for a grant of $42,450, to hire nine university and 34 high school students between May and August.

Helen Bell, president of CUPE local 947, said today union executive met last week with school board officials and decided the program is against union policy because it doesn't pay union wages.

The lowest union rate is $5.13 an hour. Under the Youth Employment Program, the ministry of labor pays maximum hourly wages of $3 for high school and $3.20 for university students.

Bell said the decision was not a personal attack on local school board policy, but a stand taken by the national and B.C. organizations to protest layoffs and cutbacks this year.

"It's a nation-wide stand the executive has taken."

A proposed summer job creation project last year was cancelled for the same reason.

All employers in B.C. are eligible to apply for funds under the program, but if they want to pay wages exceeding the $3.20 maximum, they must do so out of their own pockets.

According to program coordinator Joseph Calado, the project is meant to help studends accumulate work experience and job references during the summer that will aid them find full-time employment after they leave school.

The proposed summer jobs ranged from a survey of buildings and grounds by high school students to a job for one university student assessing physical education equipment and supplies for repairs.

One university and two high school students would have been employed to study the high school dropout situation in the district.

Another high school and university student combination would have been hired to research case studies of students with learning disabilities.

'Remember, Folks, Word's Alooo-HA!'

THE BOEING 747, AN aircraft which I had believed to be only less stable than the Rock of Ages, bucked, sunfished and jittered. The No Smoking light glowed. So did the Fasten Your Seat Belts. What the pilot had comfortingly described to us as "a little turbulence" on the Hawaii approaches impressed me as a full-fledged storm.

Lights swam into view far below. After hours of traversing the trackless ocean, we had made our landfall. In a matter of minutes, I devoutly hoped, we'd be down in Honolulu.

The 747's landing gear caressed the runway. A ripple of applause ran through the plane — first time I'd heard that in any flight — for the pilot who had brought us safe in without so much as a bump. Then we were into the fuss and bustle of disembarking in the Sunshine Isles we'd dreamed of through the wet and lowering days of a Vancouver Island February.

I peered out of the plane to the field.

"Oh boys," I said to my wife. "Look at that."

Rain streaked our windows. Raindrops pelted the blacktop so enthusiastically that they bounced a foot in air.

The Big Island of Hawaii was experiencing floods. The Island of Oahu on which we'd landed had been warned that its turn might be next. The Islands in total were suffering through their wettest winter sine 1904.

I turned up my trench-coat collar, jammed my wool watch-cap over my ears, and trudged in[illegible] port.

Nobody seemed to mind the rain. Most of the men seeing people off or waiting for new arrivals wore light slacks or shorts, white shoes and brightly-patterned aloha shirts. Many of the women were in long, flowered muu-muus.

A dark and pretty young muu-muu wearer stepped out of the crowd with a welcoming smile. She peeled a lei made of blossoms from that bunch that dangled from her arm, and reached to noose my neck with it. At the same time, her lips puckered to bestow a kiss.

"Wrong tour!" the dark young man beside her hissed in her ear.

The lips unpuckered. The lei was snatched back so briskly the blooms almost crackled.

But before I could register dismay, another pair of greeters descended on us, and the welcome promised in our tour prospectus was delivered. We were kissed. Leis were hung around our necks while hands on our shoulders dexterously spun us to blink into the eye of a camera.

We had been consigned to the hopper of Hawaii's smooth-functioning tourist processing machine, which handles 26,000 new arrivals each day in Waikiki alone.

Our tour guide, a striking Hawaiian girl in an orange muu-muu, shepherded us into the bus that would deal us out to our various hotels. While we rolled along streets in which the breath of flowers competed with the exhaust fumes of innumerable cars, we were taught the correct pronunciation of Hawaii's key word.

This is "Aloha", which means hello, goodbye, welcome, and also love.

Our driver got in on the act.

"Now remember, folks," he told us, "it's Alo-HA! You string it out, see? And you come down heavy on the last syllable.'

Chorusing Alo-Ha! we rambled on our way. Our driver attempted a shortcut. His bus became wedged crossways on a dog-leg corner. He backed and filled. Traffic jams built up fore and aft of us.

We were then treated to a display of the happy-go-lucky Hawaiian temperament which was a revelation to mainland North Americans.

People got out of cars. They undertook to direct. From hotels and houses, other people boiled out on to their porches, or lanais. They too called directions and reassurances to the driver. It was good-natured bedlam, unmarked by so much as a word of impatience or anger. No car horns tooted. Drivers obligingly backed their vehicles on to the sidewalks to give the bulky bus a clearance.

Well-schooled, the bus passengers gave the crowd an Alo-HA! as we cleared the corner.

That episode set the tone for our stay in the islands. Invariably, wherever our wanderings took us, we found the native Hawaiians to be good-humored, courteous and obliging to a fault. And beyond any other people we have met, they seemed possessed of a wonderful capacity for the enjoyment of life.

Next morning, I woke to bright sunshine. Win was up before me. She was taking the air on our 10th-floor hotel lanai, a concrete eyebrow that jutted from the building.

"You'd better put on a jacket," I called to her. "You'll get cold, standing there."

Win gave me an indulgent smile. "Come on and try it," she invited.

I padded out to the porch. We had passed from our raw northern clime to full summer . . . to warm air that lay like silk upon the skin.

On the street below, a couple of brown-tanned fellows strolled shirtless in the direction of the beach. That same street was fringed picturesquely with palm trees. Clustered amid the top-tufts of those palms were sure-enough coconuts.

Fleetingly, I wondered whether it was still snowing at Campbell River.

Couple Leaves Gallery Antique Porcelains

The Art Gallery of Greater Victoria has received a group of 18th century porcelains valued at about $100,000 from the estate of an elderly Oak Bay couple.

The bequest of the late Joseph and Ann Pearson, of 1256 Beach Drive, consists of 240 items including 100 pieces of Worcester ware that are among the finest ever assembled in Canada, gallery director Roger Boulet said today.

Pearson was a retired realtor and his wife was an internationally known antique dealer and collector, who for about 30 years ran an antique store known as The Old House at 1038 Fort Street.

He died March 2, aged 89; she died nine days later, aged 80.

Fifteen years ago, when they announced that the porcelains would be left in their will to the Art Gallery, Mrs. Pearson said: "We wanted to leave the collection to someone who would appreciate it."

Boulet said the porcelains all date from about 1745 to 1775 and besides Worcester they include Chelsea, Bow, Langton Hall and Caughley pieces.

"The Worcester is the prize, the landmark," he said. "It will make the Art Gallery's collection of pocelain the finest in Canada, if not on the continent."

The gallery took delivery of the porcelains on Friday but will not display them until after the will is probated, possibly in early summer.

Auctioneer Frank Kilshaw said the auction for the balance of the Pearsons' estate may be the largest single-estate auction ever held in Western Canada.

The couple's home was a treasury of antiques all dated prior to 1820, he said.

"Everything they had they used and lived with," said Kilshaw, who described Mrs. Pearson as a "brilliant" collector with an international reputation.

business

Shell Group

The Royal Dutch Shell group, the world's second largest oil company, reported its profits fell by 21 per cent last year.

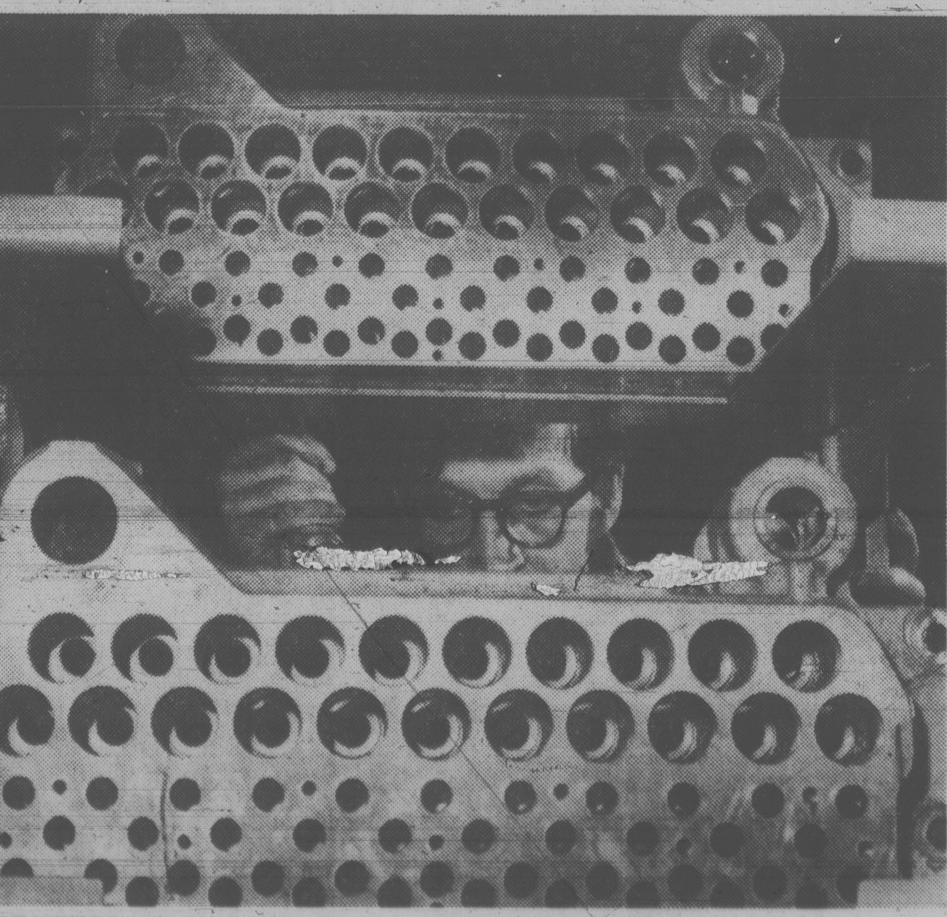
The company said it made a profit of about $2.2 billion U.S., compared with a profit of about $2.8 billion in 1977.

Royal Dutch, second only to Exxon in size, said the drop in profits was due to an accounting technicality that boosted its 1977 earnings.

It also was affected by an accounting rule relating to converting foreign currencies into British pounds, the currency it uses to calculate its profits.

Shell said its profits were also hurt because earnings from its Shell Oil Company and Shell Canada subsidiaries were lower than in 1977 when converted into pounds because of the weakness of the Canadian and U.S. dollars.

The company reported that its total sales last year rose to about $58.4 billion from $57 billion in 1977.



PRESSURE CLEANING a valve block of ductile iron to ensure smooth surfaces is a step in the production of a 23-ton glass container-making machine at Emhart Corporation's Hartford Division in Windsor, Conn. The multinational company has reported $5 million in orders from two South Korean glass firms for machines to produce beer bottles, drinking glasses and vitamin drink bottles.

GHI Mortgage

GHI Mortgage Investors reports net income of $730,257 or $1.61 a unit for 1978, compared with net income of $633,190 or $1.46 a unit a year earlier.

The company's latest annual report says mortgage loans totalled nearly $10.4 million last year. Most of the loans were commercial mortgages, and about three-quarters of the total amount was invested in Alberta.
